1,500,000 MEN IN VERDUN BATTLE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, May 31.—With heavy reinforcements of both men and guns, the Germans are again delivering sledgehammer blows on the Verdun front. This was the hundred and first day of the battle. Without reckoning their losses, which have attained shocking proportions, the Germans are making their supreme effort to break through. It is believed that there are at least 1,500,000 men now locked in the grip of battle on both sides of the Meuse. Day and night without pause nor slackening, the big guns, in which 6,000 pieces of artillery are engaged, rages.

More ammunition is expended on the 35 mile front north of Verdun than in any other sector on any of the front since the war began.

At least 10,000 shells fall every day amidst the ruins of Verdun and its neighbor villages or upon the scarred ridges of the hills which flank the Meuse.

Some apprehension was caused by the view of the official communiqué issued by the war office at midnight, in view of the admission previously made of a German gain on the left side of the Meuse. The communiqué dwelt briefly on the fury of the German bombardment especially in the region of Le Mort Homme. The French city of Lens, which is held by the Germans, has been shelled intermittently for months. It is one of the most important railway centers on the German front.

MEMORIAL DAY AT WOODSTOCK

Memorial Day was observed at Woodstock with a parade and public exercises in the Reformed Church.

The parade took place at ten o'clock and besides the local fraternal organizations, there were a number of handsomely decorated floats in line. At the close of the parade, the Memorial Day exercises took place in the Reformed Church, which was filled. Mr. Smith of New York city, who owns a large summer home near Woodstock, presided. Patriotic selections were sung by the entire assembly, the accompaniment being played by the Chichester band. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read and a recitation was rendered by Miss Riseley of Woodstock.

The address of the day was delivered by County Attorney John W. Eckert of Kingston, whose theme was preparedness. Mr. Eckert spoke as follows:

This nation has each year two national days, the one the "Glorious Fourth of July," our day of independence, the other Decoration or Memorial Day. The former is a holiday by federal statute, the other a national day by common consent of all the people recognized now in most states by statutory enactment. Today we celebrate with the blast of trumpets, the boom of cannon and the spirit of a gala occasion; the other we solemnize with prayer, thanksgiving and grateful appreciation of the noble deeds of noble men. So today have we come together.

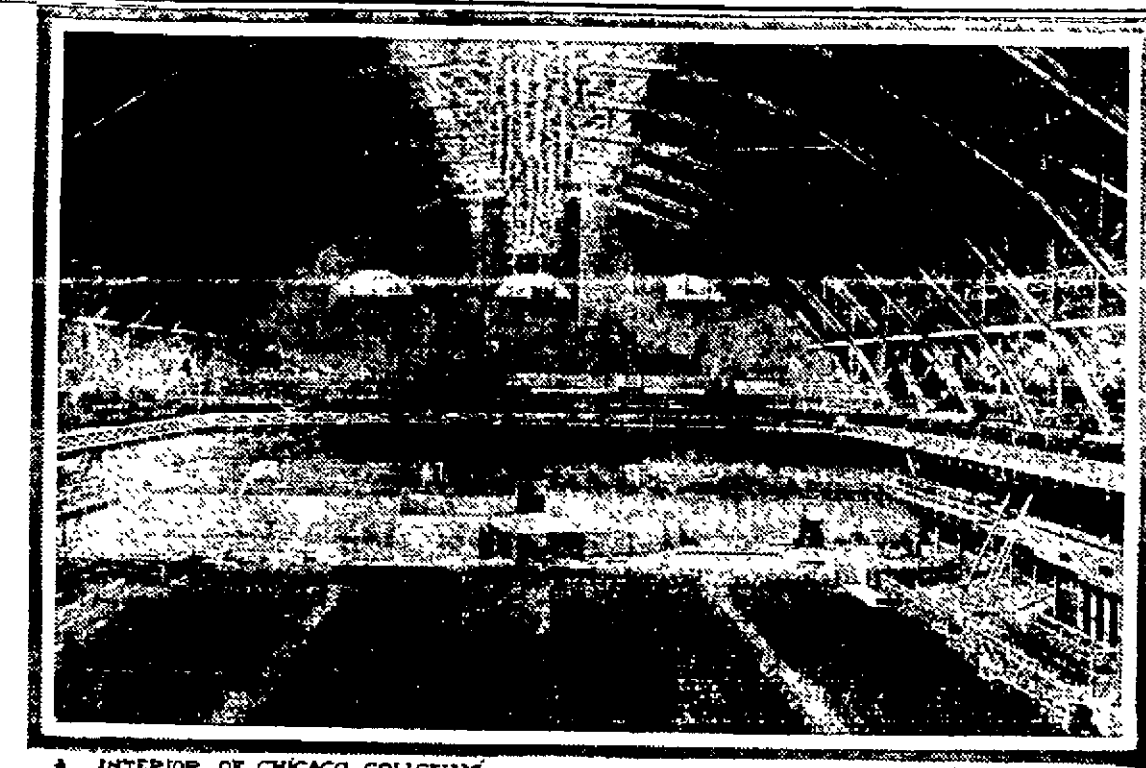

A nation, teeming with business and commerce, has halted for a day amidst its great activity, to worship at the shrine of the heroes of a great war. Lending hands throughout the land will deck the resting place of departed veterans, be it a stately mausoleum or a humble unmarked mound, with the flag which they followed and to which he was true, and with garlands of victory and floral tributes of love, while in the path of the living will be strewn kindly deeds and tokens of honor. As we have gathered, so too will countless other thousands, to give expression to our reverence and regard for those undying mortals through whose efforts we have been preserved a nation, to enjoy its blessings of liberty, freedom and unity.

The roster of that war is a roll of honor which has been cast in tablets of pure gold, erected within the temple of our memory; and their feats of valor have been sculptured upon the indestructible breezes that grace the Hall of Fame of American hearts.

The most of us, not having experienced the sorrows of the four years of that war, and never having witnessed the actuality of so tremendous a political revolt, take our union and its solidarity as a matter of course. We cannot realize the consternation and horror of that moment in April, '61, when the north was electrified and for the moment paralyzed with the news that Sumter had been fired upon and that the south had seceded. It seemed incredible to them, that the posterity of Washington, Jefferson and Randolph, and the noble sons of Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia, who had in the revolution so valiantly struggled to establish a nation, should seek to render it asunder. Hesitation was, however, but momentary; and inspired by that spirit which they imbued from their patriot progenitors, they made solemn vow, that the stately and massive edifice of government which had been by so much sacrifice, bloodshed and privation, erected, should not be demolished and that the Grand Old Stars and Stripes which had floated over its ramparts should continue to wave over land and sea with its full complement of stars, as the continued emblem and insignia of freedom.

History informs us how magnificently the men of this and other northern states responded to that first call to arms; how the smithy with his hammer poised in air went forth from the forge; how the weaver left his loom; and how the tiller of the soil without finishing the furrow joined his brigade. All took up sword and musket for the preservation of our beloved nation and to do battle for the proposition that all men are created equal, and that they are vested with certain inalienable rights. Nor did the horrors of death or the anguish of parting deter them. Lovers with the kisses of their sweethearts warm upon their lips, they threw themselves from a fond embrace; sons went from the arms of their mothers; and husbands left adoring wives and unborn babes to bearken to the call of duty and protect that which because of its necessity was dearer than all, the fair name and unity of our republic.

With mingled emotions of pride and pain, we follow the progress of those noble defenders of our national existence during the "Great American Conflict." We recount and retell without tiring the stories of the war's campaigns. Every detail of each battle is as dear to us as were the details of Thermopylae to the patriots of ancient Greece. The sting of Bull Run is etched by the exhibition over the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson, the first real victory of the north, made easy of recollection by the memorable ultimatum of the Great Grant. "No terms, except unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted." Sadness wrings our hearts at the horrible slaughter at Fredericksburg and that of Antietam's "Bloody Lane," but the latter is alleviated by a ray of joy, when we recall that it was the immediate cause for the issuance by Lincoln of his immortal Proclamation of Emancipation, which struck the fetters from the wrists of a human race. Then there were Vicksburg and Shiloh with its state little church standing through the fearful fire and smoke of battle, Pea Ridge and Lookout Mountain, fought above the clouds, and Fair Oaks and Chancellorsville and Missionary Ridge and Chattanooga, through the vicissitudes of all of which we have many times followed the boys in blue with interest and excitement. We shudder with horror at the sufferings of the Wilderness, where the crackling relentless flames cremated the dead and lapped up the lives of the wounded who were unable to evade them; we become faint with the contemplation of the carnage of Gettysburg where for three days they fought from Cemetery Ridge to Round Top, through the famous Wheat Field and Peach Orchard, by the Bloody Angle and into the Devil's Den. Sherman's march to the sea has been immortalized by verse and song, while Phil Sheridan's spectacular ride through the Shenandoah has been perpetuated by the artist's technique.

The rest of the main floor and the balconies will be given over to the visitors.

The pages of history blaze forth with the names of Grant, Sherman, Fighting Joe Hooker, John Logan, Meade, McDowell and Garfield together with many others, including our own former citizen, George H. Sharpe. It heralds their victories and softens the criticisms of their defeats; but always, for the men of the ranks, the valiant men of the ranks, if any of you there be here today, through whose unflinching bravery, unswerving fidelity and unselfish sacrifice was the tide of battle always won, is there always unlimited and unstinted praise and appreciation.

You have suffered the sights of the wounded and witnessed the anguish of death, to you, who have been shrieked at by shot and shell, who have charged as they did at Ball's Bluff into the very jaws of death and mouth of hell; to you, who have felt the cruel thrust of a bayonet or the burning of a bullet in your own flesh; to you, who have cared for the dying and buried the dead, is due all honor and all praise which can be an appreciating populace he meted out to you. You have felt the exultation and intoxication of feats of daring; you have felt the despondency of failure; you have witnessed the solemnity of the final salute which ushered your comrades into the final bivouac of the dead; you have aided your comrades; you have succored your enemies for they were your erring brothers. Yes, you have done these things and more, and you have effected for all time by your blood the one blot which marred our escutcheon of liberty.

And the people of this county of Ulster feel that they have a bond of sympathy between them and you, for their fathers and their brothers fought hand in hand with you. With that patriotic spirit which has ever been characteristic in the history of the county from earliest times, it responded to the call to arms and sent to the front its full quota and more. From within its boundaries were recruited the greater number of the members of four regiments, all of which were important factors in many battles of the war. They were the Old Twentieth, the Eightieth New York State Volunteers, the One Hundred and Fifty-sixth New York, and they were under the leadership of Colonel Pratt, General Sharpe, and Colonel Cooke respectively. The boys of Ulster were at Fredericksburg, and with Hooker at Chancellorsville. On the second day of the battle of Gettysburg they were with Birney's Division and upon them the full fury of the storm of battle of that day fell, causing them to leave upon the field more than two hundred dead; and they were at the Wilderness in the thickest of the fray, being for the greater part of two days in the foremost ranks. Likewise they distinguished themselves at Cold Harbor and in the trenches before Petersburg. Therefore we feel a spirit of kinship with you.

Wars, however, like life, must end, and after bitter strife comes peace and a truce to existence. So it was in sixty-five. At last the din of battle and its roar passed, the cannon ceased to belch forth fire, and the life and drum were silenced. What a tragic scene that last act in the great drama. There, on the glorious morning of April, at Appomattox, under the spreading trees gathered the armies of Grant and the armies of Lee. On the one side were the grizzled victors of the north, on the other the vanquished children of the proud south. Not a cheer went forth from the Union ranks, not an unkind word for the boys in gray, for they were the brothers of the boys in blue, erring and misguided it is true, but blood of the same blood and flesh of the same flesh withal. Brother would no longer fight brother, father would no longer fight son. On the side of the victors, all was compassion and kindness, on the side of the south was sorrow but not regret. At last the great mantle of peace was draped over the land of the free, enveloping all with its folds without regard to race or color or creed, and embracing all the states that were the component parts of the American Republic.

SEEKING ASSETS OF RUDDY-SAUNDERS CO.

No prospectors for minerals in the Catskills ever looked harder or closer for valuables than did an appraising party from federal bankruptcy court which this morning started a tri-county search for assets of the Ruddy and Saunders Construction Company, highway contractors, late of Troy. The appraisers are former Sheriff Fred Hornbeck of Dutchess county; Charles Van Etten of Kingston, formerly employed by the contractors; and Chester Hous of Altamont. With the party was Attorney D. G. Atkins, who represents the trustee, George W. Smith, who is superintendent of the Ruddy and Saunders company.

At the first meeting of the creditors in the case, held at Albany, attempts were made by attorneys to locate the missing $32,000 which the company had drawn from the state treasury just previous to the involuntary bankruptcy petitions being filed. It developed that this money had been paid out to satisfy outstanding loans.

John R. DeLee of Troy, who testified that he was president, treasurer and superintendent of the concern, swore that he drew no salaries in the first two capacities but as superintendent he received $200 a month. Since the company quit work, he has been engaged as a butcher. He swore to receiving the state checks aggregating $32,000 on February 23 last, and depositing them in the bank. That same day he as president and treasurer checked the money out to five different persons in sums ranging from $2,000 to $18,000.

One item of $18,000 went to a Troy lawyer. Of this $12,000 was for money loaned, witness declared, and $6,000 for legal services. Even some of the high-salaried counsel at the hearing are said to have gasped at this item. Other checks were for the payment of notes which DeLee produced in court. His examination will be continued at the next meeting of the creditors.

Former Highway Commissioner John N. Carlisle has been engaged as counsel to Attorney Atkins and efforts will be directed toward securing some return for the creditors whose claims aggregate several thousand dollars more than the sum drawn by the contractors from the state.

A BIG BLAST.

4,800 Pounds of Dynamite Used in Rensselaer County.

Saturday one of the biggest blasts in a stone quarry was set off at East Nassau, N. Y., when 4,800 pounds of dynamite was used. This big blast occurred at the stone crushing plant and quarries of the Rensselaer Stone Company at that place which is in charge of William Hanley, father of Sergeant William F. Hanley of the Kingston police force. Ten large well holes were drilled to a depth of from 60 to 70 feet and the dynamite loaded in the drill holes. The dynamite was exploded by electricity, and the blast was highly successful. This was the largest amount of dynamite ever exploded at one time in Rensselaer county.

A Popular Booth.

At the dance of the Boy Scout troop at the dance of the Boy Scout troop last evening at the armory the scouts had erected a booth where Blundine and Kanouse Ginger Ale were on sale during the evening. PLAN TO MURDER JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

Got to Wrong House and Hurled Bricks Through Windows of Vanderbilt Mansion—Other Man Failed to Appear.

New York, May 31.—In the belief that he was carrying out a plot to kill John D. Rockefeller, Saerbes Fowles, dressed by the police as an anarchist, today hurled three bricks into the home of W. K. Vanderbilt, Sr., at 650 Fifth avenue.

According to the police Fowles declared that he and a friend had decided Rockefeller was the cause of all the misery among the poor and had arranged to kill him. He said he was to throw the bricks and that his friend was to appear with a revolver and shoot Rockefeller when the door was opened to learn the reason for the attack.

Believing that Fowles was a bomb thrower, a policeman knocked him unconscious with his night stick.

The attack on the home was made when Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt and their daughter were still asleep in rooms on the second floor of the mansion. When the first brick crashed through the plate glass window and broke an $800 mirror the family was awakened and Mr. Vanderbilt ran down stairs to investigate. He appeared at the window just as Fowles was arrested.

At the request of Mr. Vanderbilt the prisoner was taken into the house. He then explained the plot against Rockefeller. They had mistaken the Vanderbilt mansion for the Rockefeller home.

Fowles's friend failed to appear. Whether he was waiting at another house could not be learned. Fowles had a pocket in one of the pockets of his coat and the police say he declared he intended to use it on Rockefeller. In case his friend failed to make good his part of the conspiracy.

Although Fowles would not admit that he was an anarchist, the police suspect that he has been affiliated with the Brest faction of Terrorists and are making an investigation to learn whether a plot has been checked by Fowles's father. The prisoner, who said he came from Naples a few years ago, was held on charges of malicious mischief and carrying concealed weapons.

CARRANZA NOTE IN WASHINGTON

Washington, May 31.—Carranza's latest note to the United States, in which it is understood he again demands the withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico, was delivered to the state department today by Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza's ambassador designate here. Upon returning to the Mexican embassy, Arredondo refused point blank to discuss the note. He said that any word on it would have to come from Secretary Lansing.

Arredondo was at the state department but a few minutes. The note was in Spanish and the work of translating it was begun immediately. The note is declared to be firmer in tone than any previously sent by the Constitutionalist First Chief. The United States is asked, it is understood, to set a date in the immediate future when the American forces will be withdrawn.

Officials at the war and state departments believe the delivery of the note brings the Mexican situation to a head. No attempt is made to disguise the belief that Carranza intends by a show of force to make the United States answer his note immediately. Officials say that the massing of so many troops in northern Mexico can mean only that Carranza is determined that the American troops must get out.

What answer will be made to Carranza's demands is problematical, officials say. While it has been stated right along that the American troops would not be withdrawn in the face of the Mexican demands, it was pointed out today that the way has been paved for gradually withdrawing them. The coming of Venustiano Carranza, chief lieutenant, and the dispersing of his band, was declared, will make it easy to say that the bandit bands have been broken up and that the purpose of the expedition has been accomplished.

Later Arredondo consented to receive a representative of the International News Service and discuss the demands made by Carranza.

"The note demands a definite explanation of the purpose of the United States in keeping its troops in Mexico," he said. "General Carranza says: 'In my judgment there is no reason for their being there.'"

"General Carranza points out that President Wilson has repeatedly declared in his public utterances and in the diplomatic correspondence with Mexico that he does not desire war with Mexico but that the Wilson administration by its delay in refusing to withdraw the troops has really contradicted its protestations of friendship."

"General Carranza says further that if the United States government's assurances of friendship for the Mexican people are sincere, the American troops will be withdrawn at once. He says that the attitude of this (American) government, and the course it is now pursuing, leaves room for suspicion as to its real intentions."

"Then there is a lengthy discussion as to the duty that falls upon both governments to patrol the border and places blame for the recent raids squarely upon the United States government."

"He says the matter of patrolling along the frontier is the duty of both the Mexican and the United States governments, but that the troops should remain on their respective territories. One of the glaring faults of the present patrolling system is the leaving unprotected of such places as Glen Springs. This incident is pointed out in the note as an illustration of the failure of the methods now being pursued. The Glen Springs raid was made possible by the failure of the U. S. troops to be on the frontier within American territory."

"General Carranza makes it plain that he fears further invasion as long as the troops remain in Mexico."

Easy to Identify.

Edward Davis, an eight year old hopeful who formerly resided at Milton, left his home near Flatbush Memorial Day afternoon and is still numbered among the missing. The boy wore a red coat and blue overalls so it is believed he will be found before long. He was last seen on the road to Glasse. The police of Kingston and Saunders were notified to be on the look out for the lad by Miss Gertrude Bryn, county agent for dependent children.

IRISH QUESTION NEARLY SETTLED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Glasgow, May 31.—A truce which may develop into permanent peace has been arranged between the political factions in Ireland, says the Herald. Much credit for the settlement of the troublesome Irish question goes to David Lloyd-George, the mediator.

An Irish parliament is to be established, the Herald says, but Ulster province, or the greater part of it, will be excluded.

The leaders of the Irish Nationalists and the Ulster Unionists met for the first time on Tuesday when the chief points in dispute were discussed. After a harmonious session the Nationalists and Ulstermen cordially shook hands across the table.

When home rule goes into effect many, if not all the counties of Ulster will take advantage of the feature of the law allowing them to exclude themselves by popular vote.

The game went 19 innings, Brandywine winning.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

What housewife does not enjoy putting dainty new dishes before her family, remembering, too, that the attractive way in which they are served is a large part of their popularity.

A delicious salad dressing for fruit is made by using two tablespoonfuls of honey, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a dash of salt. Use as soon as blended. Especially fine on pineapple.

Sage Rarebit.—Cut fine a half pound of rich sage cheese, add two tablespoonfuls of flour; to two egg yolks, slightly beaten, add one and a half cupfuls of milk, a fourth of a teaspoonful each of paprika and salt and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Cook over hot water until smooth, stirring often. Serve on buttered toast or crackers. When this mixture is cold it makes a nice sandwich filling.

Sweet cream on shredded cabbage with a little vinegar and sugar and a dash of salt, makes a most appetizing salad and one easy to prepare.

Fresh Strawberry Bavarian Cream.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in water to cover, put a half cupful of sugar in a saucepan with a half cupful of water, add a half a box of stemmed berries and heat to the boiling point, but do not mash; turn in the gelatin and when thickened like egg white add a pint of cream whipped, folding it in carefully. Let stand to become stiff and serve with a garnish of berries.

Strawberry Dumplings.—Take two and a half cupfuls of berries, a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter, two cupfuls of boiling water, and let simmer a few minutes. Mix together a cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and three fourths of a cupful of rich milk. Drop the batter in eight portions into the boiling syrup; cover tightly and cook twenty minutes without lifting the lid. Serve hot with the sauce and whipped cream if desired. Raspberry dumplings are prepared in the same way.

Fruit Sauce.—Take a third of a cupful of raspberry jam, or strawberry if preferred, add two tablespoonfuls of thick sweet cream, whipped, and serve on the pudding.

MISLEADING NOTICES ANNOY PROPERTY OWNERS

Ordered to Do Work That Will Afterward Be Turn Up—Other Work Ordered That is Needless—Corrected Notice Prepared, but Even This is Misleading and If Obeyed Will Cause Needless Expense.

That the Board of Public Works should prepare a new form of notice to property owners in cases where street improvements are to be made and use some common sense and accuracy in filling it out is indicated strongly by an investigation which The Freeman has made on complaint of property owners on whom such notices have been served.

Notices to property owners to relay their sidewalks, curb and gutter within ten days or that the work will be done by the city at the expense of the property owner have been served on property owners for many years, and provision for such notice is contained in city ordinances for the improvement of streets. At the time of the Broadway paving, authority was also given to the common council to direct property owners to make connections with water, sewer and gas mains as far as the curb where permanent improvements were to be made to streets. The legislative power of the common council in regard to the improvement of streets, and matters pertaining to street repair, is now vested in the Board of Public Works, which has authority to adopt ordinances, etc.

When the Board of Public Works some time ago decided on the improvement of Wall street between Maiden Lane and Henry street, and for the improvement of Fair street from Main street to Henry street, notices were served on property owners directing them to reset their sidewalks, curb and gutter within ten days, or the work would be done at their expense by the city. Notices also were served directing them not only to make connections with gas mains, water mains and sewers, but to replace those in existence with new ones. In some cases owners proceeded to comply with the notices; others, who made inquiry by telephone, were told that the notices were wrong and did not pay to have needless work done. Some, who did not think that the city authorities really meant what they said, have paid for useless work, part of which was or will be turned up by the street force.

The Wall street improvement is under way but is not finished. The improvement of Fair street has not begun. In Wall street, the gutters have been removed and remain where they were thrown alongside the street. It is the intention of the Board of Public Works not to allow the gutters to be relaid, but the street will be finished in the same manner as John street, between Fair street and Clinton avenue, without stone gutters. Wall street, between the streets indicated, has been given a topdressing of waterbound macadam, over which will be spread hot oil, and on top of that will be placed a course of asphaltum treated with asphaltum—the preparation in which C. Gordon Reel is interested. Fair street, when the improvement work is undertaken there, will be given the same treatment.

The notices served on property owners six weeks ago were the old form of notice formerly used by the police by direction of the common council. The Board of Public Works had not having made up a form of its own. Its drastic provisions met with complaint on the part of property owners, and Mayor Canfield, who received one of the original notices, drafted a new form which it is said was later served, although property owners, who received the first notice, have not received them. The first notice was in the following form:

Police Department,
City Hall
City of Kingston, N. Y.
To 191

In pursuance of the resolution of the Board of Public Works of the City of Kingston, N. Y., you are hereby notified and required, within days to relay and reset the curb and gutter and flag (Here was written in "replace water, sewer and gas connections" and anything else that seems to have occurred to the person who prepared the notices.) In front of the premises owned by you, situate at No. street, in said City of Kingston, N. Y., and that if the work above specified and required, be not done within the time mentioned, it will be done by the Common Council your expense.

Yours, &c.,
Secretary of Board of Public Works.
Served 191
Expires 191

To add to the general messing up of matters some of these notices were mailed five or six days later than the date they bore.

The later notice, which form is now in use, is as follows:

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS
City Hall
City of Kingston, New York.
To

The Board intends to resurface or otherwise treat the street in front of your premises Nos. Street, within a short time. If your sewer, water or gas connections are in need of renewing or repairing, this is to notify you that the same should be attended to at once, as it will be necessary for you to obtain permission from the Board to open such street after said work is completed. It is the desire of the Board to preserve each street that is resurfaced in its finished form as long as possible, and permission to open it after its completion will only be given in extraordinary cases.

Furthermore, the sidewalk and curb and gutter upon each street that is improved should be at proper grade and in proper condition, and the Board has so ordered. If your sidewalk, curb or gutter does not comply with same, kindly have same remedied and attended to at once to avoid notification from the Board to do so.

Yours truly,
Asst. Secretary B. P. W.
Mailed 19
Expires 19

It will be noticed that this notice directs gutters to be relaid by owners, although the gutters are to be turned up and not used again. The grade on Wall and Fair streets was established a long time ago, and property owners who received the notice served by the board of public works were presumed to obtain the correct grade of their property from the city engineer. It has been customary in this city whenever street improvement was undertaken for the city engineer to supply property owners with the grade of their property before any of this work was undertaken, but the official notice is silent on this point and a property owner who resets his sidewalk, curb and gutter in order to comply with the notice, without seeking information from the city engineer, does so at the risk of having the work condemned afterward. The system of notifying property owners is at fault in this respect, and property owners who promptly complied with the notice served on them probably will not be compelled to pay again for the work in case the work has been done through a mistaken notion that the notice meant what it said, but they are not likely to have the money they paid for relaying gutters, needlessly refunded.

When the Fair street improvement is undertaken, at the conclusion of the Wall street work, the gutters will not be relaid. The Wall street work is being held up by the inability to get the rock treated with asphaltum in which C. Gordon Reel is interested, but as soon as the preparation is received the work will be continued.

The notices to relay curb and gutter within ten days which the city serves on property owners are practically meaningless, according to one city official who was questioned by a Freeman reporter this morning. It is not intended that the property owner shall do the work within ten days, and the work is not expected to be done until the city engineer's force has passed through the street and has driven stakes in the ground indicating the correct grade. The time when that work is done is dependent on the amount of work on hand and the progress of work in other parts of town.

A property owner whose property is supplied with electricity or who uses kerosene for lighting and has no intention of connecting with gas is not compelled to make any connection with the gas main, in spite of the notice served by the city. Property owners can be compelled to connect with the sewer, and practically every property is connected with water where water is to be used at all on the premises, but there is no intention on the part of the present city officials to attempt to compel owners to burn gas. Where a street is permanently improved, it is required that connections which later will be needed shall be made as far as the curb before the permanent improvement takes place, and tearing up the way is always done—invariably results in failure to replace it in as good condition as it was before. In the notices sent out those connections already in existence were ordered replaced, regardless of their condition.

The cost to the property owner to relay the curb, where the work is done by the city, is about eight cents per foot.

The matter of proper notices to property owners probably will receive the attention of the board of public works at an early date. The present notices are insufficient and do not mean what they say, and in addition are sometimes dated as of the day when the board of public works directs them to be served, although the actual service of the notices on the property owner may not take place until five or six days later. It is expected that the matter of notices will be taken up with Mayor Canfield and Corporation Counsel Brinnier, both of whom are property owners and lawyers.

Awaiting Its Time.

One age cannot comprehend another; there, too, it takes time to disengage, subordinate, eliminate. Truth of this sort is not the elaboration of one keen or strong mind, but of the secret experience of many; nihil sine aetate est, omnia tempus expectat; "Nothing is without its age and date; all things wait for their time."—Dean Church.

New Ideas Always at Command.

No person is ever too old to develop new ideas and rich thoughts. The brain is the last organ in the body to develop, and it differs from all the others in its ability to keep on growing as long as it is exercised. In fact, many brain cells do not become ripe enough for a high state of development until middle age.

MAY HOLD BENEFIT FOR TONY DENIER

Big New York Theatrical Man Writes Superintendent Edmonston Asking if it is True That Denier is Inmate of Alms House.

His attention called to the plight of Tony Denier, one of the most famous clowns in this country in his youth, by reading in the newspapers that Mr. Denier is an inmate of the Kingston Alms House, a big New York theatrical man has written to Superintendent Edmonston asking if the item he read in the newspapers was true. He intimated that if it was it was likely that the theatrical folks of the big city would probably arrange a benefit performance for Mr. Denier's relief. Mr. Edmonston has turned the communication over to Mr. Denier who will reply to it.

Characteristics of a Gentleman.

Propriety of manners and consideration for others are the two main characteristics of a gentleman.—Beaconsfield.

PORK AND PORCELAIN.

And the Venus Shell of the Shores of the Mediterranean.

You remember the comment of the wag who declared that if fish should be served only on plates adorned with fishes and seaweed pork should be served only on porcelain. And you probably saw no connection whatever. It is remotely possible that the wag saw no connection, either—beyond the sound of the words.

Curiously enough, there is a deep inner connection between pork and porcelain, a connection that happens to drag in a certain kind of fish that was found on the shores of the Mediterranean. That fish was the Venus shell, and it inhabited a house more beautiful than any Italian palace. The top of the shell was oval and arched, and when it was covered with a fine gray seaweed the children who played along the shore called it "porcelain."

In time the Venus shell came to be known as the porcelain, perhaps because the people who gathered the shells for their commercial value were more familiar with the pig than with the luminous goddess of love, whose radiance was supposed to be reflected in the lustrous house of the creature who dwelt in the sea from which Venus is said to have arisen.

The luster of that shell was well known all over Europe, and when a potter at Meissen succeeded in producing a glaze on earthenware that was very hard and luminous he called it "porcelain," because it resembled the shell of the "porcelain." He was not thinking of "porco," the Italian hog, nor of "porca," his spouse, nor yet of "porcelain," the little pig, but he gave his ware a name that ultimately suggests pork.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SPARE HARMLESS SNAKES.

They Are Natural Foes of Many of the Farmers' Worst Pests.

Among the best although least appreciated friends of the farmer are the harmless snakes, such as the milk snake, the "chicken" snake, the garter snake, the blue snake, the black snake and some others. All of them are the natural enemies of rats, mice, weasels and similar animals that infest farms and village homes, especially where there is poultry or other small live stock.

In an article in the Scientific American Dr. Robert W. Shufeldt says that it would well repay every farmer in the country to keep half a dozen harmless vermivorous snakes on every acre of his place.

Although most farmers believe that the common "chicken" snake haunts their outbuildings in order to feed on their young ducks and chickens, the snake does nothing of the kind, but it does destroy great numbers of young mice and other pests. Man's dread and hatred of snakes, says Dr. Shufeldt, have been from the earliest time a matter of erroneous teaching. Harmless snakes are the easiest animals in the world to tame, and it is high time that the false ideas about them should be corrected.

More than that, it should be taught that, like birds, they are among the best friends that the farmer has. If we destroy them we pave the way for the destruction of our forests, our staple farm products and a good deal else that now and always has been protected by snakes and birds.

Bows to the People.

At the main entrance doors of the house of commons is still enacted a scene that recalls stern ceremonies of Elizabethan days. When the king's messenger, the black rod, approaches the house of commons the doors are closed and locked in his face. He must knock three times and bow three times with true humility to the common people; then and only then will the king's messenger be heard by the people's representatives in commons assembled. In such customs is indicated the inherent purpose of the house of commons to insist upon its full prerogative as the direct representative of the common people from which the creation of republics and democracies is made possible.—London Globe.

An Australian Mole.

The Australian mole burrows obliquely in the sand, going two or three inches under it and never betraying its passage except by a slight undulation of the soil. In digging it uses its conical nose, which is protected by a horny plate, and the strong, mattock shaped claws of its fore feet. The hind feet, which are wider and spade shaped, throw the sand back, so that no trace is left of the tunnel which it hollows. It comes to the surface a few yards farther on and then buries itself again, all without making any noise.

MARK TWAIN AS A LECTURER.

The Story of His First Appearance Upon the Platform.

The story of Mark Twain's first great public lecture is told in Albert Bigelow Paine's "Boy's Life" of the humorist in St. Nicholas. It had been suggested that he should lecture on the Sandwich Islands, where he had been spending some weeks as a newspaper correspondent, and one of his San Francisco friends urged him to hire the largest hall in the city and charge a dollar a ticket.

"Without waiting until his fright came back," writes Mr. Paine, "Mark Twain hurried to the manager of the Academy of Music and engaged it for a lecture to be given Oct. 2, 1866, and sat down and wrote his announcement. He began by stating what he would speak upon and ended with a few absurdities such as:

A SLENDID ORCHESTRA Is In Town, but Has Not Been Engaged Also.

A DEN OF FEROCIOUS WILD BEASTS Will Be on Exhibition in the Next Block A GRAND TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION May Be Expected. In Fact, the Public Are Privileged to Expect Whatever They Please.

Doors open at 7 o'clock. The trouble to begin at 8 o'clock. "Mark Twain was well known in San Francisco and was pretty sure to have a good house. But he did not realize this, and as the evening approached his dread of failure increased. Arriving at the theater, he entered by the stage door, half expecting to find the place empty. Then suddenly he became more frightened than ever. Peering from the wings, he saw that the house was jammed-packed from the footlights to the walls. Terrified, his knees shaking, his tongue dry, he managed to emerge and was greeted with a roar, a crash of applause that nearly finished him. Only for an instant—reaction followed. These people were his friends, and he was talking to them. He forgot to be afraid, and as the applause came in great billows that rose ever higher he felt himself borne with it as on a tide of happiness and success. His evening from beginning to end was a complete triumph. Friends declared that for descriptive eloquence, humor and real entertainment nothing like his address had ever been delivered."

It is a great evil as well as a misfortune to be unable to utter a prompt and decided no.—Simmons.

DRAWING A STAR.

Trying It This Way Is Said to Be as Funny as a Circus.

When your party is not making progress enough to suit you try the following on them: Take a large sheet of plain paper and draw a five or six pointed star on it. Have the star about ten inches wide from point to point. Then draw another star on the outside of the first one, so that a space of about half an inch is left between the two stars all the way around.

Then provide yourself with a hand mirror and a book. Place the paper flat on the table. Put the book end up on the side of the paper nearest you. Toss the mirror and place it on the opposite end of the paper. Then looking into the mirror you should be able to see the whole star. Having provided yourself with a pencil, fix it on a spot inside the two lines of the star and proceed to draw another star on the inside the two lines by looking only at the star through the mirror.

The book is simply used to prevent your eyes dropping down to the drawing itself. If your pencil goes outside the lines or inside you have lost your turn.

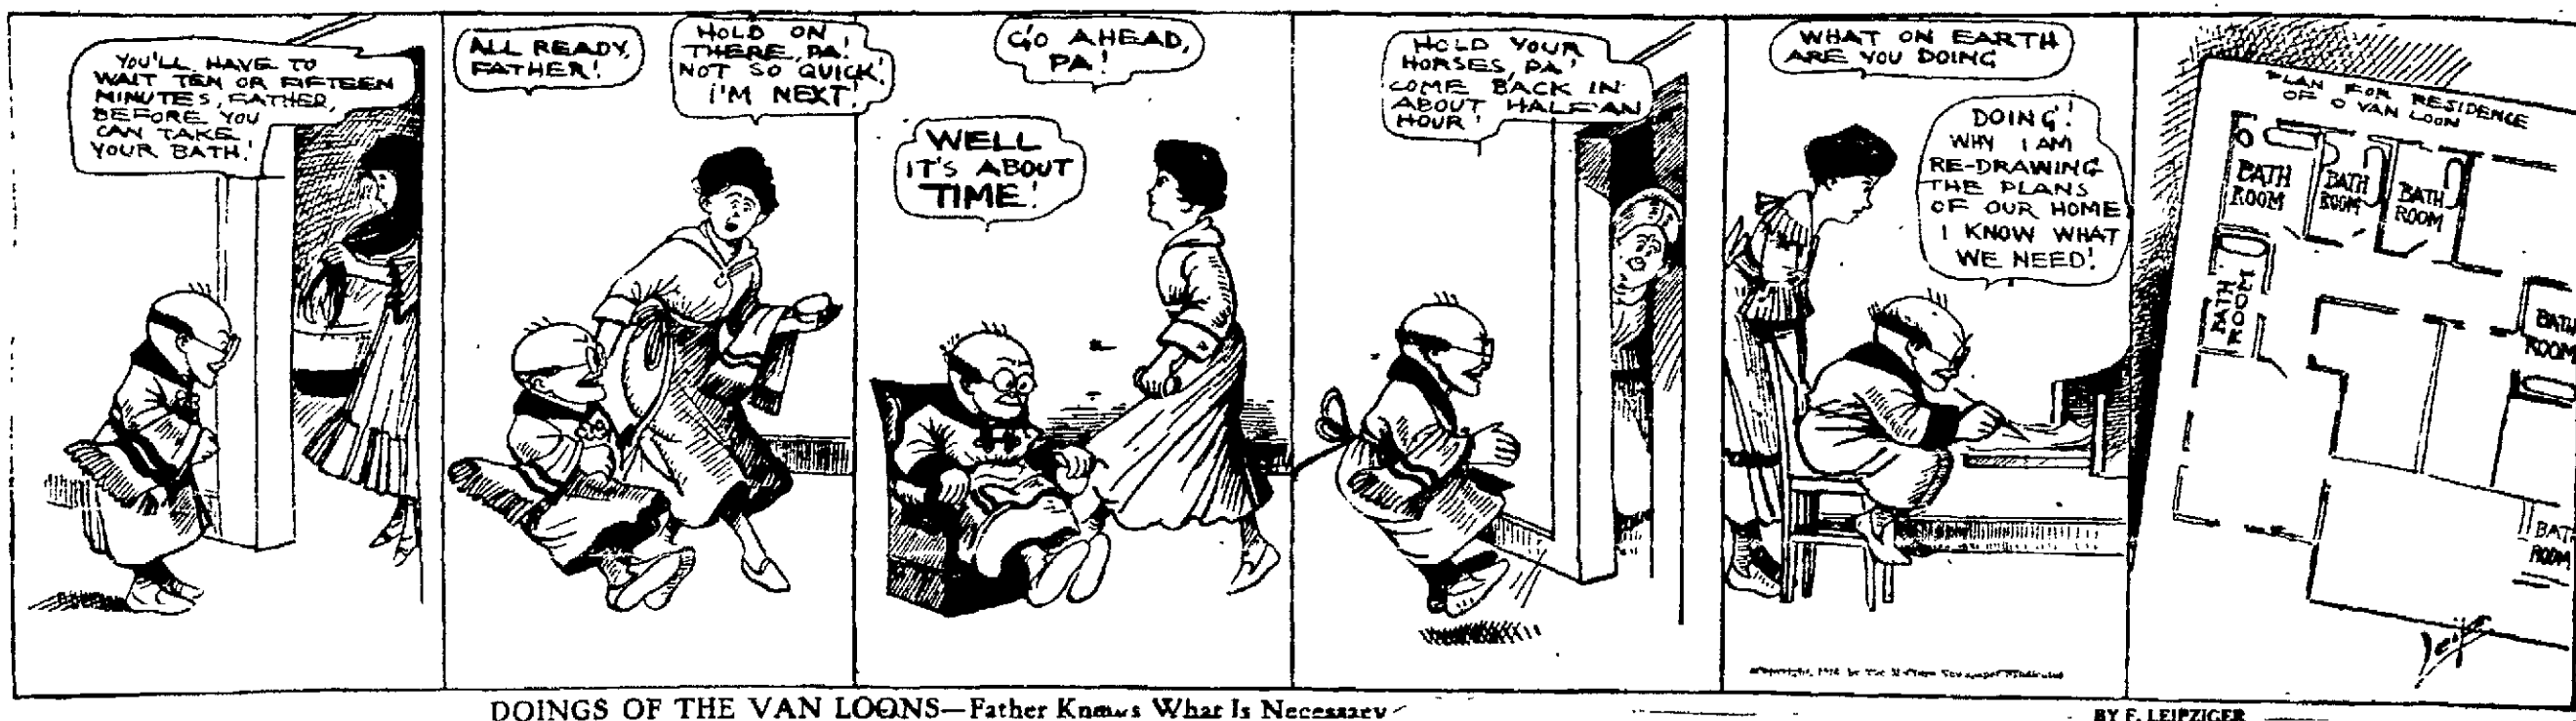

Try it out and see what you can do. Some say it can be done, and others say it can't, but whether it can or can't has little to do with it; it will furnish enough amusement to keep a crowd convulsed for an hour.—Cleveland Dispatch.

What Is Good Water?

Good water is colorless, clear, free from suspended matter, of brilliant luster and free from smell or taste. Bad water may sometimes meet all these specifications and yet be full of germs. Rainwater is good; so is water from clear ice or from springs, lakes, large rivers and streams in uninhabited districts. Rainwater from polluted surfaces is bad; so is the water from snow ice, small ponds, streams and wells in inhabited places. Marsh water is bad, and streams below towns are almost certainly full of germs and sewage.—Outing.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT.

What housewife does not enjoy putting dainty new dishes before her family, remembering, too, that the attractive way in which they are served is a large part of their popularity.

A delicious salad dressing for fruit is made by using two tablespoons of honey, three table-spoonsful of olive oil, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a dash of salt. Use as soon as blended. Especially fine on pineapple.

Sage Rarebit.—Cut fine a half pound of rich sage cheese, add two table-spoonsful of flour; to two egg yolks, slightly beaten, add one and a half cupsful of milk, a fourth of a teaspoonful each of paprika and salt and two tablespoonsful of butter. Cook over hot water until smooth, stirring often. Serve on buttered toast or crackers. When this mixture is cold it makes a nice sandwich filling.

Sweet cream on shredded cabbage with a little vinegar and sugar and a dash of salt, makes a most appetizing salad and one easy to prepare.

Fresh Strawberry Bavarian Cream.—Soak two tablespoonsful of gelatin in water to cover, put a half cupful of sugar in a saucepan with a half cupful of water, add a half a box of stemmed berries and heat to the boiling point, but do not mash; turn in the gelatin and when thickened like egg white and a pint of cream whipped, folding it in carefully. Let stand to become stiff and serve with a garnish of berries.

Strawberry Dumplings.—Take two and a half cupsful of berries, a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter, two cupsful of boiling water, and let simmer a few minutes. Mix together a cupful of flour, two teaspoonsful of baking powder, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and three fourths of a cupful of rich milk. Drop the batter in eight portions into the boiling syrup; cover tightly and cook twenty minutes without lifting the lid. Serve hot with the sauce and whipped cream if desired. Raspberry dumplings are prepared in the same way.

Fruit Sauce.—Take a third of a cupful of raspberry jam, or strawberry if preferred, add two tablespoonsful of thick sweet cream, whipped, and serve on the pudding.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 31, 1916.

In his Memorial Day address President Wilson admitted that the army reorganization bill which he is about to sign will not amount to much unless the business men of the country allow their employees to volunteer without detriment to their financial prospects. It is hardly necessary to raise a doubt on this point. There are plenty of employers who are entirely willing to "sacrifice and lend a hand," as the President phrases it. We heard of no young man who went to the Spanish war who suffered disadvantage on his return. Yet there is another side to the question. How about those employers who do not volunteer themselves and who are either unable or unwilling to put up with the temporary absence of patriotic employees? Shall they reap the benefits of preparedness without contributing to establish it? Should not all the money required for public purposes be raised by taxation instead of by voluntary contribution? Constant passing of the hat has grown irksome to cities and other communities, where a few citizens always bear burdens which should rest upon all, and the same feeling exists regarding national affairs.

Not only druggists but people the State over will find interest in the Supreme Court decision by which an Amsterdam pharmacist must pay $3,000 damages to the mother of a boy whose efficiency was impaired through the use of drugs sold him by the druggist in question. The trial court judgment has just been unanimously upheld by the Appellate Division at Albany and, in writing the opinion of the court, Justice Wesley O. Howard says: "The plaintiff bases her claim upon the same principle which underlies the cause of action accruing to a father in case of the abduction of his daughter, or to a husband in case of the alienation of his wife's affection. Precedent is not necessary in order that the plaintiff may recover here. If the rights of the plaintiff have been invaded, there must be redress." Under this construction of the law a parent whose child may have become impaired in morals or efficiency by the use of narcotics, whether alcohol or drugs, can recover from the person responsible for the sale of the same. Some of our lawyers are prone to complain of the loss of negligence litigation from the compensation laws, but here is a field that promises a great business if the extent of the illicit drug traffic has not been overestimated. A few decisions of the character quoted and the druggists who hand out habit-forming drugs for the sake of profit would curtail their illegitimate activities in a fashion hardly to be realized even by prosecution under the criminal statutes.

The fever for speculation in steel stocks bred of the demands of the Allies for war munitions may have its counterpart in silver stocks if ingenious theories emanating from Wall Street authorities are to be given serious consideration. One of these attributes the increasing demand for silver to the increasing purchases by the European nations for the purpose of accumulating reserves for vast issues of paper money. So great has been the flotation of currency that there is not sufficient gold in all the world, according to statistics, to place behind it. Silver has been selling previous to the war at less than 50 cents an ounce, but today it is more than 75 cents an ounce. It is natural that stock speculation should follow in the wake of such increases—indeed, the jump is almost sufficient to revive some of the discarded theories held by a former Presidential candidate.

Many newspapers are notifying readers of the necessity for ordering copies of special numbers in advance and of the advisability of becoming regular subscribers in order to obtain daily copies, as the shortage of news-print paper is already being felt and only limited numbers of extra copies are now being run in addition to regular editions. This is fast becoming a rule in the most wasteful of newspaper offices where the scarcity of white paper is bringing about a much-needed reform. Not so many years ago any such announcement would have been greeted with a hoot of derision by many newspapers; in fact, paper stock used to be accounted an infinitesimal part of the cost of a job of printing, a fallacy which soon spread to newspaper production, where it still sticks in the minds of people better informed on other subjects. The large number of failures in the publishing of newspapers may be traced in no small degree to some such idea as that of print paper being of little or no account. The men who pay the white paper bills of newspapers of any consequence in this country know better. Some of the wasteful ones who have been preaching conservation to others these many years have found that conservation begins at home when it comes to print paper. For them it is coming to be either conservation or bankruptcy.

His Duties.

William Hamlin Childs, in presiding at a meeting of the Merchants' Association in New York, thus explained the functions of a chairman: "I have two younger members in my family who are long on affection but short on reverence for its nominal head. Telling them at dinner recently that I was to preside as chairman today, one of them immediately proceeded to tell me what a chairman was by saying: 'A chairman is a man whom nobody knows, who introduces somebody that everybody knows.' And from the other side of the table came this: 'The duties of a chairman are similar to those of a vestibule to an art gallery; simply a place to linger long enough to leave your rubbers and your umbrella and stop as few moments as possible.'"

Safety First.

On the Exchange Place, Liverpool, a little knot of people was gathered, gazing intently at two particular points of light that were visible above the adjacent chimney-pots, and interested arrivals were impressively informed on inquiry that the objects of popular interest were British airships guarding the port. Two men, who were late arrivals, shared the interesting news; then one exclaimed to the other: "Heavens alive, they've taken Venus and Jupiter for airships!" "I know," was the quiet response, "but don't say it out loud. We don't want to be mobbed or propositioned."—Manchester Guardian.

Lawyers Again.

James B. Duke, the tobacco king, apropos of one of his multi-millionaire dinners in his mansion on Fifth avenue, said:

"It was a purely social dinner, but nobody believes it. Dinners of that sort are as suspiciously regarded as the legal profession."

"We see how the legal profession is regarded every day. Thus, last week, a famous lawyer said to a witness in cross-examination:

"Now, come, come, friend, isn't everything you have told us a tissue of lies?"

"The witness frowned, and the judge said to him with a smile:

"Now what have you got to say to that?"

"Your honor," the witness answered, "what I say to that is that my business isn't one where you have to lie to make a living."—New York World.

the natural course of events, we have had thrust upon us our island possessions, and we have acquired some territory by purchase. Yet as we look back over the world's history, we are in years, but an infantile nation. The earliest Empire, that of Babylon, had its beginning two thousand years before the Christian Era, and for nineteen centuries it flourished with a brilliance that has cast a glow all down through the ages; but naught now remains of its splendor and the magnificent hanging gardens of Nebuchadnezzar are buried beneath the drifting sands of centuries. The stately arab now pitches his lonely tent in the shadow of the pyramids of Kufu, where once labored the subjects of the dynasties of the Pharaohs; while the wild birds have built their nests amid the ruins of the magnificent palaces of the Assyrian Kings. Nineveh, the exceeding great city, is but a memory. Greece, with its idealistic forms of government, had a kaleidoscopic existence for half a dozen centuries and then succumbed. The Roman Empire and its extensive colonies became the prey of the hordes of northern Europe.

Must not then, all these ghosts of the past give rise in our mind to the question of the duration of the existence of our own United States; and the conjecture, attendant thereupon, must needs formulate another enquiry, as to why we should or should not endure ad finem, and what must we do to hand to posterity this government intact with its power undiminished, to be by them further developed? For nearly a century and a quarter after the conception of our Republic, we engaged almost wholly in the development of our natural and other resources, in the accumulation of wealth, and in the development of science and art. We kept ourselves free from entangling alliances and held aloof from the world's affairs, except in so far as we ourselves were vitally affected. We shunned foreign wars with success, excepting on two occasions, the War of 1812, and the Mexican War.

It is true, that the Monroe Doctrine had been promulgated and enforced; but that was for our own interest and protection, more than for the purpose of laying down a rule of conduct for nations or a desire to help and protect the South American governments, and to enforce it, owing to the remoteness of other great nations, was not an especially stupendous task. In '98 we embarked upon a new policy, and by the war with Spain proclaimed aloud to the world and its powers, that thereafter, we would see to it that a decency of international morals and relations should be maintained. In other words, we threw off the cloak of provincialism and aloofness; and proclaimed ourselves a world power, ready and willing to be treated as such, and accepting the responsibilities attendant thereupon.

For a decade and more following that declaration, we fortunately were not called upon to make good our assertion or to demonstrate our ability so to do. Now, however, events have changed. For upwards of two years, history has been in the making of a more rapid rate than during any other period within the compass of civilized affairs. An entire continent on the other side of the world is completely under the domination of the war god; and in that Herculean effort in which are engaged Saxons, Huns, Slavs, the followers of Mohammed and the descendants of the Caesars and Charlemagne, the participants are not always careful of the rights of others. We have suffered grievously from such lapses from the observance of the laws of nations. The Central Powers have been the greatest offenders, in that they have ruthlessly and without right, more than one occasion crushed out American lives. The allied nations are less culpable for their acts have caused injury only to property, for which in a large measure they have made recompense. In both cases, however, the settlements of these disputes have been far from satisfactory; and they show, although with regret I say it, a contempt for our government and its administration. But they are not all of the troubles which have assailed us. Within a little more than two months, Mexican bandits have made bold, on at least two occasions, to invade the territory of the United States, and in their wake have left a trail of death and destruction. Up to this time, practically the whole of the regular army had been unable to bring them to the bar of justice, and to add insult to indignity, the de facto government of Mexico recognized by this government for what reason, heaven only knows, has demanded that they withdraw from the territory which they admittedly are not able to govern and have denied to us the opportunity to use their railroads for the transportation of supplies. Americans now are and for more than two years have been practically without the protection of their own government when in Mexico, and millions of American capital there invested, cannot be operated, while neither government makes any pretense at its protection. It is a serious and humiliating situation, and if a little more than a year ago, we had been less proud and more ready to fight, the situation might have been less tense, and some respect for American citizenship might have been extant in that unhappy country.

The time was, when a citizen of the United States might travel the civilized world over, in any country or any clime where civilization was known, and we had the respect of all peoples; but regrettable as it is to admit, the facts have demonstrated that conditions have changed; therefore we must endeavor with all the ability of accomplishment which we have inherited from our fathers, to correct the impressions that have evidently gone abroad, and we must establish our status among men.

If necessary it should become, we must not be too proud to fight.

All of this is introductory, my fellow citizens, of the statement that we are in a "pitiable state of preparedness," as recently it was expressed by an eminent officer of the U. S. army, and perhaps to the existence of that condition, are due the unhappy episodes to which I have referred. We must remedy these things, also we cannot be sure that inheritance we will hand to posterity. There is no more reliable insurance against the loss of peace through war, than preparation to meet any exigency which may arise. The standing army of the United States today is but little in excess of 50,000, and until the passage of the recent military bill of congress, its total strength by recruiting could not be in excess of about 119,000; less in its total possible strength, than any single army now on the European battle fields; and this mere handful of men are the conservators of the safety and peace of over 119,000,000 souls. In respect to the navy, we are perhaps in a better position, but that too is extremely inadequate, and even within the last week, have I read that several of the ships are to be put in dry dock, as there are not sufficient men to man them. With more than seven thousand miles of sea coast to protect, not to mention the Philippines, the Hawaiian, Guam, and other islands, we ought to have a navy second to none in the world. We must build submarines, not to prey upon ships of commerce, carrying neutral passengers and non-combatants as some nations seem to think is their proper sphere of endeavor, but for the protection of the Atlantic and Pacific sea ports and cities, which are among the most important that we have. It is a cold matter of fact, that the guns of Fort Hancock which protects New York harbor and that greatest of metropolises are outdistanced in range by more than three miles by the guns of the ships of the super-dreadnaught type such as the Queen Elizabeth of which England and Germany have several. The mere contemplation of the havoc and the loss of life that would follow from one single shell being dropped into the city of New York, is or ought to be sufficient argument to convince the most ardent pacifist.

Another item of weakness is our aero squadron. While it is true that American inventors and scientists lead in this branch and have perfected the most perfect machines, yet at the beginning of the trouble with Mexico, the number of our planes was but eight. Of this number four were put out of commission on the first day of actual use, and two more subsequently developed difficulties; and without comment I mention the plugging of the machine guns delegated to protect Columbus, and the absolute lack of any facilities for transportation of water, which was overcome only by the Standard Oil Company giving way on a contract for fifty-four tank wagons, so that the government might purchase them.

I cite these occurrences not in a spirit of criticism entirely, but to present to those people who are against reasonable preparedness, the necessity for it. I do think, however, that the administration is culpably lax and laggard, not to say negligent, in allowing such conditions to become possible.

I can readily appreciate the arguments of the pacifists in favor of their contention, that war takes the flower of the manhood of a nation; that it is the most wicked producer of economic waste, and that one man has no right in the sight of God to send his brother to war; but these arguments are based upon the false foundation, that the individual and not the collection of individuals which forms a government, is the source of power. I sometimes think that we Americans have enjoyed liberty and freedom to so great an extent, and are so jealous of our rights to them that we do not realize or recognize in our earnestness that their source is in government itself and that without such government and its authority, they would fall us. Furthermore, we do not argue for preparedness for the purpose of war, but to prevent war, and invite in other nations a decent and wholesome respect for us.

We have once more come together here within the sacred walls of this temple of the Almighty with gratitude in our hearts for the kindly consideration He has ever shown and accorded our nation. We have renewed our covenants of patriotism and we have paid our meagre tribute to the defenders of the ark of our liberties. We shall now go forth with renewed vows of loyalty and allegiance to the country which we love so well; and having renewed those vows, let each one of us, each man and each woman, strive with all the ability of which we are capable to make this a nation among nations with a reputation for honor, and liberty and justice; and we must demand that our government and its citizens be accorded the respect to which it and they are justly entitled in every continent, in every country and on every sea.

Painful Bunions.

Dissolve one ounce of camphor gum in two ounces of kerosene and apply to your bunion freely. You will be surprised to find how quickly it takes the soreness out. Painting them with iodine, to which a very little glycerin has been added, is, perhaps, the best means to a cure. In the meantime, easy shoes, rather long, should be worn, with a pad of felt under the joint to prevent any friction.

POLICE BALL TOSSERS READY FOR SEASON

Have Received Nifty New Baseball Uniforms From William O'Reilly, and Expect to Open Season With Either Newburgh or Poughkeepsie Cops.

The local police force have received the twelve baseball uniforms recently ordered from William O'Reilly, the Broadway sporting goods dealer, and are now ready to meet all comers. The police had received bids from all the sporting goods dealers quoting prices, and awarded the contract to Mr. O'Reilly, who was the lowest bidder.

The uniforms are of blue grey with black trimmings and black caps to match. The uniforms are very nifty and the police will make a fine appearance when they stride out on the diamond for the first game of the season. Manager "Jack" Boyd is in communication with Poughkeepsie and Newburgh trying to arrange a game for July with the police ball tossers of that city. As yet no game has been arranged. The police have some high class talent and the only trouble will be the selection of the twelve best men from the squad of twenty-six members of the force, all of whom are able to play the game. The would-be members of the team are all using their spare time in throwing and batting the ball, and are also doing considerable running to get their wind in shape for the big game.

IDEAL PARK.

Ideal Park, May 31.—J. H. Palen of New York is visiting his sister, Mrs. Leroy DeVall, and will remain until after Decoration Day.

Our "Ideal Park" club house is becoming quite popular this season, with city guests occupying it for a few days at a time, by members of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Coles spent Sunday at "Ideal Park" club house and enjoyed a fine fishing trip.

The Rev. H. Houston and family of Poughkeepsie are visiting at their summer home in this vicinity.

Mostly all the bungalows are filled by summer guests here.

Mr. and Mrs. Tobey, Sr., of Kingston are spending a few days at their camp in this place.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Powley and family of Kingston spent Sunday at their bungalow here. They entertained as guests Mr. and Mrs. Gene Carroll and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crocker of Schenectady.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Matthews entertained Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Baylor at their camp on Sunday.

Mrs. E. E. Matthews and friend, Mrs. P. Baylor, of Kingston, also Mrs. Leroy DeVall were callers on Mrs. Edwin DeVall on Monday afternoon. J. H. Palen of New York was also a guest and rendered some fine selections of music on his phonograph, which we all enjoy in the park.

Mrs. Alfred Post and lady friend of Philadelphia are at their camp here.

Mrs. George Tobey of Kingston was at her camp over Sunday.

WEST PARK.

West Park, May 31.—There will be a special meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of Ascension Church at "Heartsease," the summer home of Mrs. T. T. Smith, on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at which every member is desired to be present. Preparations are being made for a business meeting of all the branches of the Woman's Auxiliary in Ulster county at Ascension Church on Thursday, June 15. There was a congregation of over eighty gathered for the memorial service on Sunday afternoon. The address was given by the Rev. William Francis Mayo, and the graves of the soldiers of '61 were decorated by members of Washington Camp, P. O. S. A., of Esopus. The cemetery has been put in very good condition under the direction of the rector, the Rev. Richard C. Searling, who also arranged for the memorial service.

Ordination at Port Ewen.

The ordination of Homer L. Sheffer, a graduate of the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, and his installation as pastor of the Port Ewen Reformed Church will take place this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the church auditorium, to which the public is invited. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. F. K. Shields of Highland Park, N. Y. The charge to the people will be delivered by the Rev. C. H. Polhemus of Port Ewen, a former pastor of the Port Ewen Church, and the charge to the pastor will be given by the Rev. M. V. Ogden of New Paltz. Immediately after the ceremony a reception will be given by the Missionary Society in the Sunday school room, which all are invited to attend, to become acquainted with the new pastor and spend a social hour together.

Dinner to Whist Winners.

The losers in the annual bridge whist tournament of the Kingston Club will give the winners a beefsteak dinner at Roxmor, Woodland Valley, tomorrow. Automobiles furnished by members will leave the Kingston Club at 10 o'clock. Mr. Miller, the manager of Roxmor, is the famous for the novel beefsteak dinners he provides, but expects on this occasion to outdo all his previous efforts. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Elva H. Bogart, Charles A. Hungerford and Christopher K. Loughran.

Feds Challenge Red Seals.

The Wilbur Feds baseball team issues a challenge to the Red Seals ball team to a game of ball for a side bet, the game to be played on any grounds named by the challenger. The Feds are confident that they can defeat the Red Seals and are willing to try conclusions, that is if both teams use the same men that worked in last Sunday's game on the Andrew street grounds. The Feds would like to receive an early reply.

MISLEADING NOTICES ANNOY PROPERTY OWNERS

Ordered to Do Work That Will Afterward Be Turn Up—Other Work Ordered That is Needless—Corrected Notice Prepared, but Even This is Misleading and If Obeyed Will Cause Needless Expense.

That the Board of Public Works should prepare a new form of notice to property owners in cases where street improvements are to be made and use some common sense and accuracy in filling it out is indicated strongly by an investigation which The Freeman has made on complaint of property owners on whom such notices have been served.

Notices to property owners to relay their sidewalks, curb and gutter within ten days or that the work will be done by the city at the expense of the property owner have been served on property owners for many years, and provision for such notice is contained in city ordinances for the improvement of streets. At the time of the Broadway paving, authority was also given to the common council to direct property owners to make connections with water, sewer and gas mains as far as the curb where permanent improvements were to be made to streets. The legislative power of the common council in regard to the improvement of streets, and matters pertaining to street repair, is now vested in the Board of Public Works, which has authority to adopt ordinances, etc.

When the Board of Public Works some time ago decided on the improvement of Wall street between Maiden Lane and Henry street, and for the improvement of Fair street from Main street to Henry street, notices were served on property owners directing them to reset their sidewalks, curb and gutter within ten days, or the work would be done at their expense by the city. Notices also were served directing them not only to make connections with gas mains, water mains and sewers, but to replace those in existence with new ones. In some cases owners proceeded to comply with the notices, others who made inquiry by telephone, were told that the notices were wrong and did not pay to have needless work done. Some did not think to ask if the city authorities really meant what they said, or if the work was to be done at the city's expense.

The Wall street improvement is now well advanced, but is not finished. The improvement of Fair street has not begun. In Wall street, the gutters have been removed and remain there they were thrown alongside the street. It is the intention of the Board of Public Works not to allow the gutters to be relaid but the street will be finished in the same manner as John street, between Fair street and Clinton avenue, without stone gutters. Wall street, between the streets indicated, has been given a topdressing of waterbound macadam, over which will be spread hot oil, and on top of that will be placed a course of the rock treated with asphaltum—the preparation in which C. Gordon Reel is interested. Fair street, when the improvement work is undertaken there, will be given the same treatment.

The notices served on property owners six weeks ago were the old form of notice formerly used by the police by direction of the common council. The Board of Public Works not having made up a form of its own, its drastic provisions met with complaint on the part of property owners, and Mayor Canfield, who received one of the original notices, drafted a new form which it is said was later served, although property owners who received the first notice, have not received them.

The first notice was in the following form:

Police Department,
City Hall
City of Kingston, N. Y.
.....191
To

In pursuance and by virtue of a resolution of the Common Council of the City of Kingston, N. Y., you are hereby notified and required, within

To add to the general messing up of matters some of these notices were mailed five or six days later than the date they bore. The later notice, which form is now in use, is as follows:

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS
City Hall
City of Kingston, New York.
.....191
To

The Board intends to resurface or otherwise treat the street in front of your premises Nov. Street, within a short time. If your sewer, water or gas connections are in need of renewing, this is to notify you that the same should be attended to at once, as it will be necessary for you to obtain permission from the Board to open such street after said work is completed. It is the desire of the Board to preserve each street that is resurfaced in its finished form as long as possible, and permission to open it after its completion will only be given in extraordinary cases.

Furthermore, the sidewalk and curb and gutter upon each street that is improved should be at proper grade and in proper condition, and the Board has so ordered. If your sidewalk, curb or gutter does not comply with same, kindly have same remedied and attended to at once to avoid notification from the Board to do so.

Yours truly,
Asst. Secretary E. F. W.
Mailed19

It will be noticed that this notice directs gutters to be relaid by owners, although the gutters are to be torn up and not used again. The grade on Wall and Fair streets was established a long time ago, and property owners who received the notice served by the board of public works were presumed to obtain the correct grade of their property from the city engineer. It has been customary in this city whenever street improvement was undertaken for the city engineer to supply property owners with the grade of their property before any of this work was undertaken, but the official notice is silent on this point and a property owner who resets his sidewalk, curb and gutter in order to comply with the notice, without seeking information from the city engineer, does so at the risk of having the work condemned afterward. The system of notifying property owners is at fault in two respects, and property owners who promptly complied with the notice served on them probably will not be compelled to pay again for the work in case the work has been done through a mistaken notion that the notice meant what it said, but they are not likely to have the money they paid for relaying gutters, needlessly refunded.

When the Fair street improvement is undertaken, at the conclusion of the Wall street work, the gutters will not be relaid. The Wall street work is being held up by the inability to get the rock treated with asphaltum, but as soon as the preparation is received the work will be continued. The notices to relay curb and gutter within ten days which the city serves on property owners are practically meaningless, according to one city official who was questioned by a Freeman reporter this morning. It is not intended that the property owner shall do the work within ten days, and the work is not expected to be done until the city engineer's force has passed through the street and has driven stakes in the ground indicating the correct grade. The time when that work is done is dependent on the amount of work on hand and the progress of work in other parts of town.

A property owner whose property is supplied with electricity or who uses kerosene for lighting and has no intention of connecting with gas is not compelled to make any connection with the gas main, in spite of the notice served by the city. Property owners can be compelled to connect with the sewer, and practically every property is connected with water where water is to be used at all on the premises, but there is no intention on the part of the present city officials to attempt to compel owners to burn gas. Where a street is permanently improved, it is required that connections which later will be needed shall be made as far as the curb before the permanent improvement takes place, and tearing up a street afterward—which, by the way, is always done—invariably results in failure to replace it in as good condition as it was before. In the notices sent out those connections already in existence were ordered replaced, regardless of their condition. The cost to the property owner to relay the curb, where the work is done by the city, is about eight cents per foot.

The matter of proper notices to property owners probably will receive the attention of the board of public works at an early date. The present notices are insufficient and do not mean what they say, and in addition are sometimes dated as of the day when the board of public works directs them to be served, although the actual service of the notice on the property owner may not take place until five or six days later. It is expected that the matter of notices will be taken up with Mayor Canfield and Corporation Counsel Brinnier, both of whom are property owners and lawyers.

Yours, &c.

New Ideas Always at Command.
No person is ever too old to develop new ideas and rich thoughts. The brain is the last organ in the body to develop, and it differs from all the others in its ability to keep on growing as long as it is exercised. In fact, many brain cells do not become ripe enough for a high state of development until middle age.

MAY HOLD BENEFIT FOR TONY DENIER

Big New York Theatrical Man Writes Superintendent Edmonston Asking if it is True That Denier is Inmate of Alms House.

His attention called to the plight of Tony Denier, one of the most famous clowns in this country in his youth, by reading in the newspapers that Mr. Denier is an inmate of the Kingston Alms House, a big New York theatrical man has written to Superintendent Edmonston asking if the item he read in the newspapers was true. He intimated that if it was it was likely that the theatrical folks of the big city would probably arrange a benefit performance for Mr. Denier's relief. Mr. Edmonston has turned the communication over to Mr. Denier who will reply to it.

Characteristics of a Gentleman. Property of manners and consideration for others are the two main characteristics of a gentleman.—Beaconsfield.

PORK AND PORCELAIN.

And the Venus Shell of the Shores of the Mediterranean.

You remember the comment of the wag who declared that if it should be served only on plates adorned with fishes and seaweed pork should be served only on porcelain. And you probably saw no connection whatever. It is remotely possible that the wag saw no connection, either—beyond the sound of the words.

Curiously enough, there is a deep inner connection between pork and porcelain, a connection that happens to drag in a certain kind of fish that was found on the shores of the Mediterranean. That fish was the Venus shell, and it inhabited a house more beautiful than any Italian palace. The top of the shell was oval and arched, and when it was covered with a fine gray seaweed the children who played along the shore called it "porcelain," the little pig.

In time the Venus shell came to be known as the porcelain, perhaps because the people who gathered the shells for their commercial value were more familiar with the pig than with the inhuman goddess of love, whose radiance was supposed to be reflected in the iridescent house of the creature who dwelt in the sea from which Venus is said to have arisen.

The latter of that shell was well known all over Europe, and when a potter at Meissen succeeded in producing a glaze on earthenware that was very hard and luminous he called it "porcelain," because it resembled the shell of the "porcella." He was not thinking of "porco," the Italian hog, nor of "porca," his spouse, nor yet of "porcella," the little pig, but he gave his ware a name that ultimately suggests pork.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SPARE HARMLESS SNAKES.

They Are Natural Foes of Many of the Farmers' Worst Pests.

Among the best although least appreciated friends of the farmer are the harmless snakes, such as the milk snake, the "chicken" snake, the garter snake, the bull snake, the blotched king snake, the blue snake, the black snake and some others. All of them are the natural enemies of rats, mice, weasels and similar animals that infest farms and village homes, especially where there is poultry or other small live stock.

Is an article in the Scientific Amer.

lean Dr. Robert W. Shufeldt says that it would well repay every farmer in the country to keep half a dozen harmless vermin destroying snakes on every acre of his place.

Although most farmers believe that the common "chicken" snake haunts their outbuildings in order to feed on their young ducks and chickens, the snake does nothing of the kind, but it does destroy great numbers of young mice and other pests. Man's dread and hatred of snakes, says Dr. Shufeldt, have been from the earliest time a matter of erroneous teaching. Harmless snakes are the easiest animals in the world to tame, and it is high time that the false ideas about them should be corrected.

More than that, it should be taught that like birds, they are among the best friends that the farmer has. If we destroy them we pave the way for the destruction of our forests, our staple farm products and a good deal else that now and always has been protected by snakes and birds.

Bows to the People.

At the main entrance doors of the house of commons is still enacted a scene that recalls stern ceremonies of Elizabethan days. When the king's messenger, the black rod, approaches the house of commons the doors are closed and locked in his face. He must knock three times and bow three times with true humility to the common people; then and only then will the king's messenger be heard by the people's representatives in commons assembled. In such customs is indicated the inherent purpose of the house of commons to insist upon its full prerogative as the direct representative of the common people from which the creation of republics and democracies is made possible.—London Globe.

An Australian Mole.

The Australian mole burrows obliquely in the sand, going two or three inches under it and never betraying its passage except by a slight undulation of the soil. In digging it uses its conical nose, which is protected by a horny plate, and the strong, mallet-shaped claws of its fore feet. The hind feet, which are wider and spade shaped, throw the sand back, so that no trace is left of the tunnel which it follows. It comes to the surface a few yards farther on and then buries itself again, all without making any noise.

MARK TWAIN AS A LECTURER.

The Story of His First Appearance Upon the Platform.

The story of Mark Twain's first great public lecture is told in Albert Bigelow Paine's "Boy's Life" of the humorist in St. Nicholas. It had been suggested that he should lecture on the Sandwich Islands, where he had been spending some weeks as a newspaper correspondent, and one of his San Francisco friends urged him to hire the largest hall in the city and charge a dollar a ticket.

"Without waiting until his fright came back," writes Mr. Paine, "Mark Twain hurried to the manager of the Academy of Music and engaged it for a lecture to be given Oct. 2, 1866, and sat down and wrote his announcement. He began by stating what he would speak upon and ended with a few absurdities such as:

A SLENDID ORCHESTRA Is In Town, but Has Not Been Engaged Also

A DEN OF FEROCIOUS WILD BEASTS Will Be on Exhibition in the Next Week A GRAND TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION May Be Expected; In Fact, the Public Are Privileged to Expect Whatever They Please.

Doors open at 7 o'clock. The trouble to begin at 8 o'clock.

"Mark Twain was well known in San Francisco and was pretty sure to have a good house. But he did not realize this, and as the evening approached his dread of failure increased. Arriving at the theater, he entered by the stage door, half expecting to find the place empty. Then suddenly he became more frightened than ever. Peering from the wings, he saw that the house was jammed—packed from the footlights to the walls. Terrified, his knees shaking, his tongue dry, he managed to emerge and was greeted with a roar, a crash of applause that nearly finished him. Only for an instant—reaction followed. These people were his friends, and he was talking to them. He forgot to be afraid, and as the applause came in great billows that rose ever higher he felt himself borne with it as on a tide of happiness and success. His evolution from beginning to end was a complete triumph. Friends declared that for descriptive eloquence, humor and real entertainment nothing like his address had ever been delivered."

It is a great evil as well as a misfortune to be unable to utter a prompt and decided no.—Simmons.

DRAWING A STAR.

Trying It This Way Is Said to Be as Funny as a Circus.

When your party is not making progress enough to suit you try the following on them: Take a large sheet of plain paper and draw a five or six pointed star on it. Have the star about ten inches wide from point to point. Then draw another star on the outside of the first one, so that a space of about half an inch is left between the two stars all the way around.

Then provide yourself with a hand mirror and a book. Place the paper flat on the table. Put the book end up on the side of the paper nearest you. Toss the mirror and place it on the opposite end of the paper. Then looking into the mirror you should be able to see the whole star. Having provided yourself with a pencil, fix it on a spot inside the two lines of the star and proceed to draw another star on the inside the two lines by looking only at the star through the mirror.

The book is simply used to prevent your eyes dropping down to the drawing itself. If your pencil goes outside the lines or inside you have lost your turn.

Try it out and see what you can do. Some say it can be done, and others say it can't, but whether it can or can't has little to do with it; it will furnish enough amusement to keep a crowd convulsed for an hour.—Cleveland Dispatch.

What Is Good Water?

Good water is colorless, clear, free from suspended matter, of brilliant luster and free from smell or taste. Bad water may sometimes meet all these specifications and yet be full of germs. Rainwater is good; so is water from clear ice or from springs, lakes, large rivers and streams in uninhabited districts. Rainwater from polluted surfaces is bad; so is the water from snow ice, small ponds, streams and wells in inhabited places. Marsh water is bad, and streams below towns are almost certainly full of germs and sewage—Outing.

Made It Hard Work.

First Maid—So you don't like to work for highbrows? Second Maid—You bet I don't. I worked for one pair of them—and never again! Him and her was fighting continually, and it kept me running back and forth between the keyhole and the dictionary all the time.—Puck.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, May 31.—Monday evening the Order of Eastern Star of this place held a special meeting for the purpose of receiving the official visit of their D. D. G. M., Mrs. Elizabeth Freer of Ellenville, and A. G. L., Lewis Magee of Catskill, and also celebrated the 10th anniversary of their chapter, and congratulations seemed to come from everyone. It seemed to be a widespread observation for there were members from several chapters in the district and Past D. D. G. Matrons and Past A. G. Lecturers and a goodly number from Vassar Chapter, 9th district. The chapter was opened in due form, W. M. Annie Maynard presiding in east. At proper time past grand officers retired when the acting grand marshal, A. D. Lent, and acting grand conductress, Mrs. Suzanne E. Decker, were introduced, and Mrs. Decker announced in waiting the D. D. G. M. and A. G. L. with official staff. They were admitted and the distinguished people were introduced by Mrs. Decker in her usual manner with a very pleasing introductory address. The worthy matron, Mrs. Annie Maynard, extended a hearty welcome and received them in the east with grand honors, after which the D. D. G. M. received the other officials and accorded them the honors due their stations. The district deputy gave a very inspiring and interesting address, after which Mrs. Clearwater, P. M., in a few well chosen words, presented a silk umbrella, the gift from the chapter. She responded, in acceptance of the gift, in the same loving motive as was given. The A. G. L. gave a short address, also several suggestions, which were greatly appreciated. The W. P. Rev. G. Scofield, in a very pleasing manner, presented him also with a silk umbrella, which he accepted with pleasure and responded in a fitting manner. Miss Grace Merritt and S. Scudder, of Clinton Chapter, Kingston, past grand officers, made fine addresses which were heartily received. Also A. D. Lent, who was the first Patron and first A. G. L. from the chapter, and he gave a very inspiring address on the chapter, its organization and the duty of members connected with it. Martin Schantz made a few remarks. He also is a past officer. The initiatory work was finely exemplified. Also a finely executed drill by the officers under the direction of the marshal, Mrs. Philip Schantz. W. M. of Vassar Chapter made a few remarks and extended the invitation for members to their chapter, Poughkeepsie, Friday evening. Several expect to attend. At the close of the work delicious refreshments were served, during which music was rendered by an orchestra of piano, violins and cornet. The room was decorated with flowers and ferns. The conductress and associate conductress had in charge the refreshments and a great deal of credit is due these people, the W. M. and staff of officers, for the very pleasant evening enjoyed by those in attendance.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pleasing Combination.

Waist 1619; Skirt 1625—This shows Pattern 1619, Ladies' Waist and Ladies' Skirt Pattern 1625.

While it may be fashionable to have the blouse of a color to match the skirt, one often finds that skirt and cloth in white, cream or flesh tints are most becoming. In this costume the waist is of cream white Georgette crepe and the skirt of brown mixed homespun. As shown in the small illustration, the waist may be finished in plain outline. The pointed finish is equally pleasing. The skirt has new lines, with popular, practical pockets. The waist is good for lawn, crepe, batiste, satin, silk, dimity and linen. The skirt, for all wash fabrics, broadcloth, serge, voile, gabardine and nun's veiling.

YAKUIS ARE BRAVE.

Fighting Indians of Mexico Who Have Never Been Subdued.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—No Indians in the southwest have earned a greater respect for their fighting ability than the Yaquis, who were reported recently as threatening the line of communications of one of the American forces operating along the Mexican border in pursuit of bandits.

Concerning this warlike tribe the National Geographic Society has issued the following bulletin from its headquarters in Washington:

"A distinguished ethnologist has said of the Yaquis that they are the only Indians on the continent who, surrounded by whites, from the beginning of their history, have never been fully subdued. In spite of the numerous defeats which they have sustained at the hands of Spaniards and Mexicans, dating back to the first half of the sixteenth century, they are today a brave, stalwart, athletic race, admired for their industry as well as for their courage. Most of the Yaquis are to be found in the southern part of Sonora, one of Mexico's border states, to the south of Arizona. Here they raise corn, cotton and the mesquite-producing maguay. The women are expert weavers, while the men are always in demand as miners, sailors, farm laborers, and as expert pearl divers. Most of their trading is done at the port of Guaymas, on the Gulf of California, where one of their chief articles of barter is the salt gathered on the adjoining coast.

"The Yaquis are not a numerous tribe, the highest estimate of their number being 57,000 in 1849. It is probable that at the present time there are not more than 20,000, about twenty per cent of whom were transported by the Mexican government to Yucatan and Tehuantepec a few years ago as the surest means of quelling the uprisings which continued to occur periodically. As far back as 1609 the Yaquis were a dreaded foe, Captain Hurdade in that year sustaining three successive defeats at their hands, meeting with his most serious reverse when he commanded 50 Spanish cavalymen and 4,000 Indian allies.

"One of the most sanguinary revolts of the Yaquis was that which occurred in 1825 when they were led by the remarkable chief known as Banderas, because of his banner which was said to be a relic of the Montezuma empire. Banderas was a resourceful organizer as well as a capable fighter. He manufactured his own gun-powder and made treaties with neighboring tribes. He also recognized the advantage of 'preparedness' and engaged several white soldiers to drill his tribesmen in the science of war. At the end of three years he had been so successful that he was able to effect an advantageous peace with the Mexican government, one of the conditions being that he be made a salaried general of the regular army. A few years later Banderas led a second revolt but this time he suffered disastrous defeat, was captured and shot in the presence of his soldiers.

"The Yaquis take their name from the Rio Yaqui (Chief River), which flows for 500 miles through the mountain gorges of Sonora, and finally emptying into the Gulf of California. Along this river the Indians make their homes of reed and adobe, with roofs of grass and mud. The warriors are a well-proportioned race, but they are prone to over-indulgence in the native drink, mesquite. Family ties are more or less negative among the men, the custom of exchanging wives being a popular practice of a not distant past. They are closely related to the Mayos, who from time to time have been forced into an unwilling alliance with their more bellicose kinsmen.

"A noteworthy characteristic of the Yaquis is their fondness and talent for music. They have retained many of their primitive dances, but the custom of tattooing the chin and arms is no longer practiced to any general extent."

KINGSTON, N. Y., MAY 31, 1916.

In his Memorial Day address President Wilson admitted that the army reorganization bill which he is about to sign will not amount to much unless the business men of the country allow their employees to volunteer without detriment to their financial prospects. It is hardly necessary to raise a doubt on this point. There are plenty of employers who are entirely willing to "sacrifice and lend a hand," as the President phrases it. We heard of no young man who went to the Spanish war who suffered disadvantage on his return. Yet there is another side to the question. How about those employers who do not volunteer themselves and who are either unable or unwilling to put up with the temporary absence of patriotic employees? Shall they reap the benefits of preparedness without contributing to establish it? Should not all the money required for public purposes be raised by taxation instead of by voluntary contribution? Constant passing of the hat has grown irksome to cities and other communities, where a few citizens always bear burdens which should rest upon all, and the same feeling exists regarding national affairs.

Not only druggists but people the State over will find interest in the Supreme Court decision by which an Amsterdam pharmacist must pay $3,000 damages to the mother of a boy whose efficiency was impaired through the use of drugs sold him by the druggist in question. The trial court judgment has just been unanimously upheld by the Appellate Division at Albany and, in writing the opinion of the court, Justice Wesley O. Howard, says: "The plaintiff bases her claim upon the same principle which underlies the cause of action according to a father in case of the abduction of his daughter, or to a husband in case of the alienation of his wife's affection. Precedent is not necessary in order that the plaintiff may recover here. If the rights of the plaintiff have been invaded, there must be redress." Under this construction of the law a parent whose child may have become impaired in morals or efficiency by the use of narcotics, whether alcohol or drugs, can recover from the person responsible for the sale of the same. Some of our lawyers are prone to complain of the loss of negligence litigation from the compensation laws, but here is a field that promises a great business if the extent of the illicit drug traffic has not been overestimated. A few decisions of the character quoted and the druggists who hand out habit-forming drugs for the sake of profit would curtail their illegitimate activities in a fashion hardly to be realized even by prosecution under the criminal statutes.

The fever for speculation in steel stocks bred of the demands of the Allies for war munitions may have its counterpart in silver stocks if ingenious theories emanating from Wall Street authorities are to be given serious consideration. One of these attributes the increasing demand for silver to the increasing purchases by the European nations for the purpose of accumulating reserves for vast issues of paper money. So great has been the fluctuation of currency that there is not sufficient gold in all the world, according to statistics, to place behind it. Silver has been selling previous to the war at less than 50 cents an ounce, but today it is more than 75 cents an ounce. It is natural that stock speculation should follow in the wake of such increases. Indeed, the jump is almost sufficient to revive some of the discarded theories held by a former Presidential candidate.

Many newspapers are notifying readers of the necessity for ordering copies of special numbers in advance, and of the advisability of becoming regular subscribers in order to obtain daily copies, as the shortage of news-print paper is already being felt and only limited numbers of extra copies are now being run in addition to regular editions. This is fast becoming a rule in the most wasteful of newspaper offices where the security of white paper is bringing about a much-needed reform. Not so many years ago any such announcement would have been greeted with a hoot of derision by many newspapers; in fact, paper stock used to be accounted an infinitesimal part of the cost of a job of printing, a fallacy which soon spread to newspaper production, where it still sticks in the minds of people better informed on other subjects. The large number of failures in the publishing of newspapers may be traced in no small degree to some such idea as that of print paper being of little or no account. The men who pay the white paper bills of newspapers of any consequence in this country know better. Some of the wasteful ones who have been preaching conservation to others these many years have found that conservation begins at home when it comes to print paper. For them it is coming to be either conservation or bankruptcy.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

The Lady—"Are you fond of lobster salad, doctor?" Doctor—"No, I'm not fond of it, but I'm very grateful to it."—Life.

"Back to the land," observed Jonah after his cetacean host had deposited him safe on the seashore.—Boston Transcript.

Smythe (dismally)—"Well, I simply can't meet my creditors." Mrs. Smythe—"Why should you? What in the world do you employ a secretary for?"—Puck.

"I will have no one in my employ who is not above suspicion. Can you offer me a spotless character?" "No, ma'am; it got some ink split on it."—Baltimore American.

"My most disturbing thought is that I may die and leave my son unprovided for." "But won't he be able to make his own living?" "No, the poor fellow is too sadly handicapped. He is a genius."—Houston Post.

"What are your ideas of the best form of government?" "Oh," replied the restless agitator, "it isn't a question of what kind of government we're after. It's merely getting rid of the one at present in operation."—Washington Star.

His Duties.

William Hamlin Childs, in presiding at a meeting of the Merchants' Association in New York, thus explained the functions of a chairman: "I have two younger members in my family who are long on affection but short on reverence for their nominal head. Telling them at dinner recently that I was to preside as chairman today, one of them immediately proceeded to tell me what a chairman was by saying: 'A chairman is a man whom nobody knows, who introduces somebody that everybody knows.' And from the other side of the table came this: 'The duties of a chairman are similar to those of a vestibule to an art gallery; simply a place to linger long enough to leave your rubbers and your umbrella and stop a few moments as possible.'"
—New York Tribune.

Safety First.

On the Exchange Place, Liverpool, a little knot of people was gathered, gazing intently at two particular points of light that were visible above the adjacent chimney-pots, and interested arrivals were impressively informed on inquiry that the objects of popular interest were British airships guarding the port. Two men, who were late arrivals, shared the interesting news; then one exclaimed to the other: "Heavens alive, they've taken Venus and Jupiter for airships!" "I know," was the quiet response, "but don't say it out loud. We don't want to be mobbed or propositioned!"—Manchester Guardian.

Lawyers Again.

James B. Duke, the tobacco king, apropos of one of his multi-millionaire dinners in his mansion on Fifth avenue, said:

"It was a purely social dinner, but nobody believes it. Dinners of that sort are as suspiciously regarded as the legal profession."

"We see how the legal profession is regarded every day. Thus, last week, a famous lawyer said to a witness in cross-examination: 'Now, come, come, friend, isn't everything you have told us a tissue of lies?'"

"The witness frowned, and the judge said to him with a smile: 'Now what have you got to say to that?'"

"Your honor," the witness answered, "what I say to that is that my business isn't one where you have to lie to make a living."—New York World.

Just Like Him.

Sandy had been photographed and as he was looking intently at his picture, Tam McPherson came along. "What's he looking at?" he asked. "My photograph," replied Sandy, showing it proudly. "What'd you think of it?" "Mon it's fine," exclaimed Tam in great admiration. "It's just like you, too. An' what might the like of your face?" "I dinna ken," replied Sandy. "I dinna ken yet." "Mon," said Tam, more firmly than ever, "it's awfu' like ye!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The natural course of events, we have had thrust upon us our island possessions, and we have acquired some territory by purchase. Yet as we look back over the world's history, we are in years, but an infantile nation. The earliest Empire, that of Babylon, had its beginning two thousand years before the Christian Era, and for sixteen centuries it flourished with a brilliance that has cast a glow all down through the ages; but naught now remains of its splendor and the magnificent hanging gardens of Nebuchadnezzar are buried beneath the drifting sands of centuries. The stately Arab now pitches his lonely tent in the shadow of the pyramids of Kufu, where once labored the subjects of the dynasties of the Pharaohs; while the wild birds have built their nests amid the ruins of the magnificent palaces of the Assyrian Kings. Nineveh, the exceeding great city, is but a memory. Greece, with its idealistic forms of government, had a kaleidoscopic existence for half a dozen centuries and then succumbed. The Roman Empire and its extensive colonies became the prey of the hordes of northern Europe.

Must not then, all these ghosts of the past give rise in our mind to the question of the duration of the existence of our own United States, and the conjecture, attendant thereupon, must needs formulate another inquiry, as to why we should or should not endure ad finem, and what must we do to hand to posterity this government intact with its power undiminished, to be by them further developed? For nearly a century and a quarter after the conception of our Republic, we engaged almost wholly in the development of our natural and other resources, in the accumulation of science and art. We kept ourselves free from entangling alliances and held aloof from the world's affairs, except in so far as we ourselves were vitally affected. We shunned foreign wars with success, excepting on two occasions, the war of 1812, and the Mexican War.

It is true, that the Monroe Doctrine had been promulgated and enforced; but that was for our own interest and protection more than for the purpose of laying down a rule of conduct for nations or for a desire to help and protect the South American governments, and to enforce it, owing to the remoteness of other great nations, was not an especially stupendous task. In '98 we embarked upon a new policy, and by the war with Spain proclaimed aloud to the world and its powers, that thereafter, we would see to it that a decency of international morals and relations should be maintained. In other words, we threw off the cloak of provincialism and aloofness; and proclaimed ourselves a world power, ready and willing to be treated as such, and accepting the responsibilities attendant thereupon.

For a decade and more following that declaration, we fortunately were not called upon to make good our assertion or to demonstrate our ability so to do. Now, however, events have changed. For upward of two years, history has been in the making at a more rapid rate than during any other period within the compass of civilized affairs. An entire continent on the other side of the world is completely under the domination of the war god; and in that Herculean effort in which are engaged Saxons, Huns, Slavs, the followers of Mohammed and the descendants of the Caesars and Charlemagne, the participants are not always careful of the rights of others. We have suffered grievously from such lapses from the observance of the laws of nations. The Central Powers have been the greatest offenders, in that they have ruthlessly and without right, on more than one occasion crushed out American lives. The allied nations are less culpable for their acts have caused injury only to property, for which in a large measure they have made recompense. In both cases, however, the settlements of these disputes have been far from satisfactory; and they show, although with regret I say it, a contempt for our government and its administration. But they are not all of the troubles which have assailed us. Within a little more than two months, Mexican bandits have made bold, on at least two occasions, to invade the territory of the United States, and in their wake have left trail of death and destruction. Up to this time, practically the whole of the regular army had been unable to bring them to the bar of justice, and to add insult to injury, the de facto government of Mexico recognized by this government for what reason, heaven only knows, has demanded that we withdraw from the territory which they admittedly are not able to govern, and have denied to us the opportunity to use their railroads for the transportation of supplies. Americans now are and for more than two years have been practically without the protection of their own government when in Mexico, and millions of American capital there invested, cannot be operated, while neither government makes any pretense at its protection. It is a serious and humiliating situation, and if a little more than a year ago, we had been less proud and more ready to fight, the situation might have been less tense, and some respect for American citizenship might have been extant in that unhappy country.

The time was, when a citizen of the United States might travel the civilized world over, in any country or any time where civilization was known, and we had the respect of all peoples; but regrettable as it is to admit, even here have demonstrated that conditions have changed; therefore we must endeavor with all the ability of accomplishment which we have inherited from our fathers, to correct the impressions that have evidently come abroad, and we must establish our status among men.

Painful Unions.
Dissolve one ounce of camphor gum in two ounces of kerosene and apply to your union freely. You will be surprised to find how quickly it takes the soreness out. Painting them with iodine, to which a very little glycerin has been added, is, perhaps, the best means to a cure. In the meantime, easy shoes, rather long, should be worn, with a pad of felt under the joint to prevent any friction.

If necessary it should become, we must not be too proud to fight. All of this is introductory, my fellow citizens, of the statement that we are in a "pitiable state of preparedness," as recently it was expressed by an eminent officer of the U. S. army, and perhaps to the existence of that condition, are due the unhappy episodes to which I have referred. We must remedy these things, also we cannot be sure that inheritance we will hand to posterity. There is no more reliable insurance against the loss of peace through war, than preparation to meet any exigency which may arise. The standing army of the United States today is but little in excess of 50,000, and until the passage of the recent military bill of congress, its total strength by recruiting could not be in excess of about 115,000; less in its total possible strength, than any single army now on the European battle fields; and this mere handful of men are the conservators of the safety and peace of over 110,000,000 souls. In respect to the navy, we are perhaps in a better position, but that too is extremely inadequate, and even within the last week, have I read that several of the ships are to be put in dry dock, as there are not sufficient men to man them. With more than seven thousand miles of sea coast to protect, not to mention the Philippines, the Hawaiian, Guam, and other islands, we ought to have a navy second to none in the world. We must build submarines, not to prey upon ships of commerce, carrying neutral passengers and non-combatants as some nations seem to thing is their proper sphere of endeavor, but for the protection of the Atlantic and Pacific sea ports and cities, which are among the most important that we have. It is a sad matter of fact, that the guns of Fort Hancock which protect New York harbor and the greatest of metropolises are outdistanced in range by more than three miles by the guns of the ships of the super-dreadnaught type such as the Queen Elizabeth of which England and Germany have several. The mere contemplation of the havoc and the loss of life that would follow from one single shell being dropped into the city of New York, is or ought to be sufficient argument to convince the most ardent pacifist.

Another item of weakness is our aero squadron. While it is true that American inventors and scientist lead in this branch and have perfected the most perfect machines, yet at the beginning of the trouble with Mexico, the number of our planes was but eight. Of this number four were put out of commission on the first day of actual use, and two more subsequently developed difficulties, and without comment I mention the plugging of the machine guns delegated to protect Columbus, and the absolute lack of any facilities for transportation of water, which was overcome only by the Standard Oil Company giving away on a contract for fifty-four tank wagons, so that the government might purchase them.

I cite these occurrences not in a spirit of criticism entirely, but to present to those people who are against reasonable preparedness, the necessity for it. I do think, however, that the administration is culpably lax and laggard, not to say negligent, in allowing such conditions to become possible.

I can readily appreciate the arguments of the pacifists in favor of their contention, that war takes the flower of the manhood of a nation; that it is the most wicked producer of economic waste, and that one man has no right in the sight of God to send his brother to war; but these arguments are based upon the false foundation, that the individual and not the collection of individuals which forms a government, is the source of power. I sometimes think that we Americans have enjoyed liberty and freedom to so great an extent, and are so jealous of our rights to them that we do not realize or recognize in our earnestness that their source is in government itself and that without such government and its authority, they would fall us. Furthermore, we do not argue for preparedness for the purpose of war, but to prevent war, and incite in other nations a decent and wholesome respect for us.

We have once more come together here within the sacred walls of this temple of the Almighty with gratitude in our hearts for the kindly consideration He has ever shown and accorded our nation. We have renewed our covenants of patriotism and we have paid our meagre tribute to the deities of the ark of our liberties. We shall now go home with renewed vows of loyalty and allegiance to the country which we love so well, and having renewed those vows, let each one of us, each man and each woman, strive with all the ability of which we are capable to make this a nation among nations with a reputation for honor, and liberty and justice; and we must demand that our government and its citizens be accorded the respect to which it and they are justly entitled in every continent, in every country and on every sea.

ROOSEVELT ATTACKS HYPHEN IN SPEECH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., May 31.—Theodore Roosevelt appealed to St. Louisians here today to be true Americans, like Franz Sigel, Carl Schurz and the nine regiments all with colonels of German descent who went from this city to fight for the Union in the Civil War.

His speech was tactful and persuasive. He described numerous Americans of German blood who have been for America first, last and all the time.

He repeated his statement that it would be possible to "man the entire administration from President down with men of German blood, and of such uncompromising Americanism that every good American could follow them with whole-hearted loyalty."

In bringing about racial groups for special interests, he said, Americans of foreign birth are injuring their own descendants, who must live here, be Americans and intermarry with Americans.

"We in this country form a new nation, akin to, but different from, each of the nations of Europe," he said. "Our duty is to the United States. This duty should constrain us in the first place to treat the other nations primarily according to the way such treatment serves American interests; and in the second place so far as possible to treat other nations in such manner as serves the interest of mankind at large."

"The American of German descent who goes to Germany is not looked upon as a German. He is looked upon and treated as a foreigner, as an American; and his ways of thought are different from the ways of thought of the people of the land."

"If either the American of English descent or the American of any other descent tries to remain with a dual allegiance, with a divided citizenship, he merely ceases to become an American without thereby becoming a German or an Englishman or anything else."

"He becomes a man without a country who has forfeited the right to be stirred by the feeling of patriotic devotion to any land, or to have a special and peculiar kinship with any people."

Mr. Roosevelt said the German-American Alliance is an anti-American Alliance. It is blazoned forth in the public press," he said, that the branches of this alliance "are attempting to coerce timid and unscrupulous politicians by threatening to vote against them, or by actually voting against them, when the German-American Alliance regards their action as unsatisfactory from the standpoint not of the United States, but of Germany."

While condemning the Americans who defend German misdeeds in the war, he said he believed that the "great mass of Americans of German origin are now, as they have always been, among the most patriotic and loyal citizens in this country."

In the Civil War, he added, a much larger proportion of the citizens of immediate German origin, that of old colonial stock, were loyal and three states of Missouri, Maryland and Kentucky were prevented from joining the Confederacy by the strong German element.

Mr. Roosevelt concluded: "I appeal to all our citizens no matter from what land their forefathers came to keep this ever in mind, and to shun with scorn and contempt the sinister intriguers and mischief makers who would seek to divide them along lines of creed, of birthplace, or of national origin. I ask them to remember that there is but one safe policy, for all Americans, no matter whether they were born here or abroad, no matter from what land their ancestors came; and that is the simply and loyal motto, AMERICA FOR AMERICANS."

Decoration Day Notes.

A party of young people, members of the Kikuit Club, chaperoned by Miss Clearwater and Mrs. C. N. Reed, enjoyed a Decoration Day outing to Bear Mountain Park.

While the stars and stripes fluttered brightly from even the mail cars of New York Central and West Shore trains on Tuesday, the big excursion steamer, Grand Republic, carrying a big crowd up the river had not so much as the smallest American flag, or any other pennant in evidence.

Large numbers of excursionists and picnickers visited West Point on Decoration Day.

Bear Mountain Park, that splendid park which is one of the most appreciated features of the work accomplished by the Interstate Palisades Commission, was visited by crowds of people on Decoration Day. In fact, so large a number of persons visited the park, that the service at the inn was taxed to its capacity, and the double line of autos parked all about the inn and lake section of the park, looked like a mobilization for preparedness. There were literally hundreds to be seen at one time, from any high point overlooking the immediate roadways.

Cake Sale.

The Rondout Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Circle, of which Mrs. Frank R. Powley and Mrs. Charles G. Ellis are chairmen, will hold a sale of cakes at the home of Mrs. Frank R. Powley on Friday afternoon, June 2, commencing at 3 o'clock. The young ladies of Mrs. Powley's Circle will serve fresh strawberry ice cream on the porch, and Mrs. Ellis's Circle will have a sale of homespun porch pillow covers. These are "smart" pillows in black and white stripes and summery clouded blues and greens with chintzy borders. The ladies also have plant sticks topped with brilliantly painted butterflies poised for flight and orders will be taken for flower bowls of a curious Chinese pottery with a decoration of bas-relief figures of birds, animals and flowers in bright colors. The public are cordially invited.

The Story of a Grain of wheat

I was born in a great field in the far West.

As my little green body first reared upward through the loamy soil, I laughed for the very joy of living. For a gentle sun beamed down on me—a fertile land promised me a strong and healthy life.

Rapidly I increased in strength. Gentle rains nourished me. Warm winds gave me up-springing life.

And then came a day when they took me away from my birthplace. I traveled for many days and nights.

Finally I came to a great mill.

They handled me tenderly there. They cooked me in barley malt. They rolled me to a thin flakiness. They toasted me. Always carefully, always gently.

And now they call me "FORCE."

"FORCE" TOASTED WHEAT FLAKES is my full name. Rich brown I am in color. And of a crispy thinness. Of a delicious taste.

They call me "FORCE." But still I am wheat. Still I have all my strength of the field, the sunshine and the cooling rains.

Perhaps tomorrow I will delight the appetite of some fairy tot at some morning breakfast table.

Then all my strength, all my nourishment, will be transferred to the rounded body of that little child. I will do my good share to strengthen him, to "rosy up" his little cheeks.

I am "FORCE." I am whole wheat. I am proud of my mission of health and nourishment.

Try me. I am on your grocer's shelf. I come at your bidding.

"Force" in its waxed paper jacket is sealed flavor-tight and moisture-proof. As near as the nearest grocer's.

Fascinating lingerie frocks are shown in white net with some form of detail trimming that proves most effective as contrast. Net is undoubtedly most popular because it is so serviceable. Very often lace either in filet or cluny pattern is combined, this lending a very rich trimming note. The frock illustrated is developed in white net, bound with narrow folds of satin. The very wide underskirt is befrilled with net and fluting of ribbon. Dainty clusters of flowers here and there afford a charming color note.

Mean Question. "She (just kissed him)!" "How dare you?" Papa said he would kill the first man who kissed me." He—"How interesting. And did he do it?"—Judge.

MAJOR CHANDLER ON WEST POINT EXAMINING BOARD

Under the new law which federalizes the National Guard, that body is now part of the regular army of the United States. The scarcity of trained officers has made it necessary to increase the number of students at the national academy at West Point.

The new law affords an opportunity for enlisted men of the army and the National Guard to get into the academy outside of the usual appointments by congressmen. The men are chosen by competitive examinations and the first of these examinations under the new law is held at Albany today in the executive chambers. There are 30 candidates from the guard and the regular army trying these examinations today and only five of these will be chosen, as that is the number allowed to New York state.

The examining board consists of seven officers from the army and the guard. Major George Chandler of this city, graduate of the Fort Leavenworth army service schools, has been appointed to serve on this board. It is the first time that officers from the National Guard have ever served as examiners for entrance to West Point and marks the national change of feeling.

No longer is the militia referred to as "tin soldiers." The change in sentiment may be seen in the press, in the people, and most notably among army men. Requirements for a commission in the guard are just as rigid as in the army, and the whole body of state troops throughout the country is now looked upon as part of our bulwark of national defense.

Church and the Workers.

The asking of questions is the beginning of wisdom. The child's education, the scientist's discoveries, the business man's success and the politician's advancement depend on their skill and success in asking and answering questions. The pastor of the Rondout Presbyterian Church has asked a number of the men of Kingston have answered his questions. An interesting feature of the experience has been, however, that they have given a great variety of answers. These questions and answers afford unique material for the Sunday evening sermons. No answer, however, different from the pastor's opinion, is neglected or refused an answer. The question for Sunday evening, June 4, is "If the Church is Not in Touch How Can It Get in Touch With the Working Classes and Shopmen?" What do the men of Kingston think of this matter? If there is any one who would like to express his opinions on this subject who has not already done so, the pastor will be glad to give his answer consideration on Sunday evening.

Gas Company Cooking School.

Starting today the cooking lectures and demonstrations arranged by the Kingston Gas & Electric Company, open in St. Joseph's school hall in charge of Caroline Putnam Webber, one of the leading cooking experts in the country. The lectures and demonstrations will be held daily each afternoon at 2 o'clock, the school holding its final session on Saturday afternoon. Every housewife in the city is invited to attend. The demonstrations will show the way to make the cleanest and most wholesome preparations for the table and those who attend will learn how to best use meats and vegetables and to make the best of pastry.

MISS GEORGETTE LENHARDT, SUFFRAGE
TON OF FLOWERS SOLD IN ONE DAY ON BROADWAY FOR

New York, May 31.—Woman suffrage and beauty are not incompatible according to a report just issued by a suffrage statistician who declare that more than one ton of flowers, parcel ed out in seventy-five automobiles, were sold by suffrage workers in one day on Manhattan's busiest corners, for the "cause" fund. Some of the women were at work all night decorating the autos and getting the flowers ready for the sale. Except for some flowers, which wilted in the heat of the day, the flower sale was a great success. One of the most successful flower sellers was Miss Georgette Lenhardt.

CURIOUS BREADS.

Some Old World Makes Serve as Curtain or Wedding Rings.

Every nation has a bread that is typically its own. In one out flour is used, in another wheat or rice or cassava, and the shape varies from the disklike Scandinavian hardtack that has a hole at the center for convenience in packing them away on poles in the farmhouse to our own plump loaves that come out of the oven in the well known form.

The bread of the Balkans, curiously made in the form of chains, is sold from the arms and necks of itinerant peddlers. In tent life in Balkania the detached links are often used for fun at quipps or serve a more useful purpose in suspending temporary curtains and awnings. Then when the campers run out of provisions they literally eat their curtain rings! The Japanese bamboo bread, so named from its shape, is a somewhat similar product. It is sliced and sold in strings.

One of the strangest of biscuits comes from Russia. It is known as fit the mouth biscuit and, besides being much appreciated as a tea biscuit, is quite commonly used by merchants ignorant of the three R's as a makeshift abacus in counting money—a lower string of ten serving for kopecks and an upper string of the same number representing rubles. More picturesque still is its usage as an extemporized ring for marrying poor peasants with whom the gold ring is lacking.—London Telegraph.

Making a Scrap Book.

Mankind may be divided into two classes, those who preserve fugitive clippings and those who don't. Among the former are many who for lack of classification become victims of their own belongings. They clip assiduously, they lay aside newspapers containing articles they wish to keep for reference, and they postpone the task of sorting and arrangement to the rainy day or the interval of leisure which never arrives. Presently they are dismayed to find themselves confronted by a pile of ephemeral literature mountain high, wherein it seems hopeless even to blaze a trail. That is where the person of meticulous, orderly habits shows his irritating superiority. With him day unto day has uttered wisdom: he has tabulated and pigeonholed his stores as they came to his hand. It does not prove that you are literary and learned to raise a vast rubbish heap around yourself or to live in a ruin that suggests the salt of a Zeppelin. Those who keep scrapbooks are likely to reckon them among the most precious items in their libraries.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Most of Us Know Him.
"De man dat says dar ain't no such thing as luck," said Uncle Eben, "is de kind of man dat takes credit for mental superiority when he ketches de mos fish."

Trees Benefited by Sapping.
India rubber trees which are tapped every other day continue to yield sap for more than twenty years, and the oldest and most frequently tapped trees produce the richest sap.

'Tis a Curious World.
When a man leaves church just as the collection plate starts on its rounds, he may have been taken suddenly ill, but the rest of the congregation doesn't believe it.

Reliability

OUR absolute faith in the Maxwell car is due to two reasons: First, we have known that the Maxwell Company uses nothing in the entire car but the very best that money can buy. We have known that the steel is scientifically heat treated, that the car is built under the supervision of able engineers, that every car is rigidly tested many times before it leaves the factory.

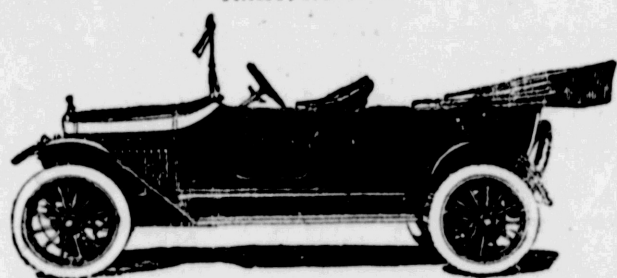

Second, we have known that the big and well established company behind the car is building for the future, that they value a satisfied owner above everything else.

Now that the Maxwell has set the World's Motor Non-Stop Mileage Record, by travelling continuously for 44 days and nights—averaging 500 miles per day—you will understand the benefits you personally may derive from the Maxwell policy. Did you ever hear of any car going 22,000 miles without once stopping the engine, without any repairs or readjustments, with only one gallon of gasoline to every 22 miles?

There is no reason why you shouldn't have a reliable, serviceable and economical Maxwell car. The first cost is low, the operating cost is low and our pay-as-you-ride plan makes the purchase easy for everyone.

Let us see you about this now, before your allotment is exhausted.

BUSY

Even an operator who is inclined to disregard the principles of service that the Bell System stands for would hardly report a line "busy" when such was not the case.

It requires more work and takes more time to report a line "busy" than to complete a connection.

Modern Nail-Making Methods.

An excellent illustration of the difference between old and new methods is the ordinary common nail. Formerly the metal was cut into strips and then forged into shape with hammers, and an expert took about one minute and a half to each nail. Today they are made of steel and are lighter and stronger. Strips are cut with steam shears and fed into automatic nail machines. One man tends three machines, which drop a nail every second.

MANY VISITORS AT SENATE HOUSE

While the state institutions are always closed on holidays, the custodian of the Senate House was on duty and there was a surprisingly large number of visitors from a distance who looked over the scene of the first legislative gathering in the Empire State. The registry contained names from persons as far west as Minnesota and there were many motor parties en route through the Catskills who stopped off for a few moments at the Senate House but who failed to register in many cases.

Kingston people at the Senate House during the day found much to admire in the addition of the beautiful little flower garden which nestles close to the walls of the old Dutch kitchen in the north wing. These were recently placed by Mrs. Edward Coykendall as head of the committee from the Garden Club where the suggestion originated. The vigilant eye of the police department is being directed on these flowers and an example will be made of the first offender caught in the act of "snipping" any of the blossoms which have been placed with such care as permanent additions to the Senate House yard.

Hundreds of people motored through the city during the day on pleasure bent among the Catskills or at resorts along the river.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

Samuel Affron has just received his new 1916 Buick six.

"A so-called co-operative organization," says Farn and Pleside, "offers automobile owners the opportunity to secure standard makes of tires, supplies, and various accessories at exceedingly low prices. First you must join the association, which is done by paying an annual fee of $10. Then you receive a catalogue which is similar to the catalogues of prominent accessory houses, but it contains a discount sheet quoting prices in some cases lower than the cost of manufacture. But when you send your order for the standard goods listed you receive a reply that they are 'just out' of those goods, and you are urged to purchase an unknown brand which they carry. The joker in the whole scheme is a little clause in the contract which says that they will furnish the standard goods 'when in stock.' Many representatives of one of these organizations in Canada were tried on the charge of fraud, and pleaded guilty. The American Automobile Association reports the existence of similar associations in this country."

The office of Public Roads, which is a part of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has used three low-priced cars in supervising maintenance of the Washington-Atlanta highway. These machines have furnished an excellent opportunity for securing accurate figures on the cost of operation. The cars were in use all of the year 1915. The total mileage of the three machines was over 52,000 miles. Two of the cars ran over 22,000 miles, each, during the year, and the cost per mile in one case was 3.97 cents and in the other 4.07 cents. The other car ran 16,228 miles, and cost 4.75 cents per mile. Roughly speaking, the cost of running a light car may be said to be between four and five cents a mile. These figures include the cost of overhauling all the cars, also storage charges, which aggregated $170. The greatest item in all cases was that of miscellaneous expense. After that came gasoline, which cost about a cent a mile and was about a quarter of the total cost. Tire casings, lubricating oil, and miscellaneous tire costs were next in importance. Grease was the most insignificant figure of all, costing but one thirtieth of a cent per mile. The automobiles were found to be considerably cheaper than livery service.

At Kingston Point Casino.

Indications are for a good business at Kingston Point this summer if the Memorial Day crowd counted for anything and throughout the afternoon patronage was brisk at all of the amusement concessions. Messrs. Bernstein, Virgil Everett and Stephen Miller, who have charge of the Casino this season, had a most successful opening with hundreds of out of town people in attendance during the afternoon while many city people enjoyed the dancing during the evening. The next public dance will be held on Saturday night.

A Creditable Service.

The memorial services for the sailor dead held at Kingston Point last Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans, was a very impressive ceremony, and the auxiliary are to be congratulated upon the success with which the program was carried through. This is only the second time that such a service has been held in this city, and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans have had charge of the services on both occasions.

Stage was Upset.

While delivering milk at the side entrance of the Kingston Dairy on Down street Tuesday morning, the team attached to the High Falls stage became frightened and started to run. As the horses turned into the street, the stage capsized and stopped their mad career. The vehicle was soon righted with little damage to its contents, no passengers being aboard at the time.

A large congregation was present at the Reformed Church Sunday evening. The Rev. Walter S. Maines, pastor, delivered a very able memorial sermon. The theme was, "The Battle of Principles." Members of Ward Post, G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans were present in a body. The decorations of the church were large and small American flags. The Rev. W. H. Moser offered prayer. The choir rendered a very fine selection entitled, "Stand Firm for the Cause of Truth." Following the close of the very excellent sermon, the choir sang softly "Tenting Tonight." The service closed by the choir and congregation singing very heartily, "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Ulster Shore Camp at Ulster Heights had a large number of guests at their opening on Saturday, and a large number of guests over Sunday and Memorial Day. A large company of Ellenville people were at Sayer Camp above Wawarsing over Sunday and the Wayside Inn entertained many guests over Sunday and the Mitchell House was crowded. Many visitors in Ellenville coming from New York, Brooklyn, Newburgh, Say towns, Kingston, Catskill, Poughkeepsie, Port Jervis, Monticello and Liberty.

Memorial Day was very quietly observed in Ellenville. All business places, schools, banks, and public library remained closed. The American flag held sway on nearly all the village homes. At 9 o'clock the Ward Post, G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans headed by the martial music, marched to Fanteekill cemetery, and after placing the flag and flowers on the soldiers' graves all gathered around the soldiers' monument, where a brief service was held. The G. A. R. men, and friends returned to the Ward Post rooms, where the Sons of Veterans had prepared with the assistance of the ladies a very fine dinner, to which all did ample justice. Rev. Walter S. Maines was present and gave an excellent talk to the Veterans, Sons and friends.

The races held by the Ellenville Driving Park Association at the driving park on Decoration Day were good, and a good crowd present enjoyed the races. All half mile heats, best 3 in 5, where free for all. Two horses were entered, Dr. Weaver by John M. Watson, Ellenville and Dr. Chase by Dewitt Beach, High Falls. Dr. Weaver driven by E. P. Miss Annie B. Merritt, a former resident of Ellenville and Wawarsing very delightfully entertained the members of the Lutheran Thimble Club at her home, 59 Walnut street, Binghamton, N. Y., on Tuesday, May 23. The afternoon was pleasantly spent, with needlework and crocheting, after which a course supper was served. White lilacs adorned the tables at which covers were laid for fourteen. Following the supper there was a brief business session, during which the secretary's report was read and plans were made for a picnic to be held at the home of Mrs. William Ash on Riverside Drive. A pleasant social evening was enjoyed. Among the guests were Mrs. M. J. Biebler of Ottawa, Canada and Miss Ada Wilbur.

One of the most successful dances ever given was held at the Wayside Inn Monday evening. There was a large attendance. A number of guests were present from Kingston. Muller's famous orchestra of Kingston furnished the music, which was pronounced as very entrancing. Many elegant costumes were worn by the ladies.

A National Potash Hunt.

According to Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published in Springfield, Ohio, the United States Geological Survey is now engaged in explorations of the panhandle of Texas for deposits of potash salt. The studies in this region made by Professor Udden of Texas seem to warrant the expenditure of public money in the search. There is some interesting development in the potash situation.

"A commercial company is making a small amount daily from a mineral called alunite in Utah. There is not enough alunite known to exist to furnish our supply, however. The great Seale Lake brine reservoir is in litigation between two companies one of which claims exclusive title to it; but Seale Lake, though larger, also falls short of a possible supply. Many chemists, some of them backed by capital, are working to get potash from the common stone known as feldspar, but the processes do not seem to work commercially. There is plenty of potash in the giant kelps of the Pacific Ocean—a huge seaweed—but its recovery presents at least two problems yet unsolved. One of these problems is the harvesting of the kelp and the other is the drying of it.

Imagine the problem of drying millions of tons of cabbage or rape to get something sold out of the plant and one has not yet quite imagined the kelp problem, for kelp is wetter than cabbage or rape. Add to the situation the fact that as soon as the war is over the Germans will be in the field with the Strassfurt salts, which they have probably never sold as cheaply as they could if they had to, and one realizes that a man will think twice before putting his money into any new process or plan of getting potash from American sources. But if in the panhandle or elsewhere concentrated deposits of Germany the case will be different. The problem, in short, will be solved. Therefore good luck to the explorers of the Geological Survey."

Cleanliness!

Cleanliness is one of the best life preservers known to science. Cleanliness of the body, of the teeth and of the attire all help to ward off disease and win the battles of life. And cleanliness is not hard to gain. There are aids that assist and most of them are inexpensive. There are good soaps and tooth preparations, brushes of standard make and many valuable toilet requisites. The best of these are sold under certain brand names that are a guarantee of character. These good brands are advertised from time to time in the columns of The Freeman.

BOY SCOUTS DANCE WAS A SUCCESS

The Boy Scouts of the city terminated their day's activities and celebration with a big dance at the Armory Tuesday evening. The music by Muller was excellent and the dancing was enjoyed by a large crowd of people. The boys gave two exhibition drills which were something new and although they had been drilled but three times before the work was heartily praised by those who witnessed the drills. Although the two drill officers were absent Rosenthal took command and put the troop through the drill in a manner which brought forth great praise for the boys. Although there were 81 boys in the parade in the morning but 61 drilled, still it made a line which extended from one end of the armory to the other and many commented upon the excellent manner in which the boys performed and expressed their opinion that the work was of as high order as though the boys had been drilled all winter.

The officers of the local council feel that Decoration Day, 1916, has been a red letter day for the Scouts, as it put them on the map in the majority of the minds of the people of the city. A year ago the organization was known to but few, but interest has been aroused in the order and many Kingstonians will give their approval to this worthy cause.

In the estimation of many the outdoor school for the Boy Scouts is as necessary as the indoor work and we now spend many thousands of dollars for the training of the boys' minds but there our system of education stops. The Boy Scout movement takes up the education where the school stops and teaches them not only thorough knowledge of outdoor life and care in emergencies of themselves and their comrades, but also teaches them cleanliness in all its branches and any boy in the United States who has gone through several years of Boy Scout work under the proper guidance will realize that he has gained in strength, health and happiness a great deal more by his outdoor training than he has by the indoor training.

The work in Kingston is in its infancy as there are but about 80 boys in this city who have joined in the work, while in the United States there are over 176,000 boys.

Those in charge of the development of the organization showed the people of Kingston yesterday that the boys are taking an interest in the work and the people of Kingston should now take an interest in the boys and give them their co-operation.

CLARENCE ROWLAND WILL HE STICK OR GO?

Chicago, May 31.—Considerable dissatisfaction is being expressed by the Chicago fans, concerning the poor showing of the White Sox in the American League pennant race. As usual, Manager Clarence Rowland is the target for the bad feelings of the fans, and rumors that Rowland, who came up from the minors last year to lead the Sox, is to be deposed are current. On the other hand, Charles Comiskey, owner of the team, declares that Rowland is to stick. The baseball going public can take its choice.

A Tribute Appreciated.

Kingston, N. Y., May 31, 1916.

Mr. Editor:

With your permission I wish to convey the thanks of the colored soldiers still living, and in loving remembrance of those buried in Mt. Zion cemetery, to the principal, teachers and children of Public School No. 1. For thirty years they have been paying a beautiful tribute to the colored soldiers who lie in Mt. Zion cemetery by strewing flowers upon their graves. They started this beautiful custom under Principal John Moran, and have continued it under Principal Murphy and yesterday, though sorely pressed for time, on account of taking part in the parade, they followed their usual custom. Surely they are carrying out the principle of the brotherhood of mankind as taught by the blessed Saviour. God bless them.

Over the Viaduct.

The Kingston City Drum Corps, which headed Excelsior Hose Company in the big parade Tuesday, discovered that since the construction of the Washington avenue viaduct no drum corps had ever mounted the dizzy heights and made the crossing, so, leading the fire ladders, the Kingston Drum Corps made the journey and now have the distinction of being the first and only band of musicians who have accomplished the feat.

WHERE WASHINGTON TEAM WILL FINISH

Dependable Washington Players.

Just where the Washington team will finish this year is a matter of conjecture. Some wise ones have named as low as sixth place for Griffith's outfit, but the team should do better than this, for it has been materially strengthened.

The Nationals' pitching staff, among the best in the American league, is stronger this season than last.

Poster is playing the best ball of his career and this is also true of Moran. Ray Morgan is in great condition and Griffith started with a team better, collectively, than he has ever had before.

MANAGER PICKS UP PLAYERS

Pat Moran Will Not Pay Fancy Prices for Ball Tossers—Hails on Expensive Stars.

Since Pat Moran has been in charge of the Phillies he has purchased only three players—Pitchers McQuillen and Karl Adams and Outfielder Good—and for each of these he paid the waiver price. He did not draft a man last fall, and he obtained the right to sign Outfielder Cooper for nothing.

Moran picked up Chief Bender and George Chalmers when they were free agents. He traded Doolin to Cincinnati for Niehoff and let Lobert go to the Giants in exchange for Stock, Demaree and Jack Adams, catcher. He obtained Whitted from the Braves, together with Infielder Duguey, in a trade for Sherwood Magee. In other words, the building up of the champions has involved an outlay of not more than $5,000 for players' releases.

Moran does not believe in deals for expensive stars, and as a result the Philadelphia club is a money-maker for the first time in a great many years.

GREAT TEAM OF "CAST OFFS"

Manager Lee Fohl Claims Strongest Collection of Discards Ever Put Together.

Lee Fohl of Cleveland says he has the greatest team of discards ever put together, not excepting the Boston Braves of 1914.

With a few exceptions every man on the Indian team has at one time or another worn the uniform of another major league team and been released for one reason or another, though it is hardly proper to call players like Speaker, Roth, Daly and Gandil "discards."

PALMERO IS QUITE ACCURATE

Cuban Twirler Never Forgets What to Do With Ball When He Gets It—Resembles Wilton.

Emilio Palmiero, the Cuban twirler of the Giants, whose splendid hurling against the Phillies in the first game of the recent series may win him a place on the regular pitching staff of the club, reminds one for all the world of George Witte in the field. He is accurate itself in handling the ball, and he never forgets what to do with the leather when he gets it. A hint to him must be perfectly placed to advance a runner.

It appears that Tyrus Cobb has a brother who resembles him in some respects, but not as a baseball player.

If Pongo Cantillon wins five American association flags in a row maybe he will get credit for having a ball club.

We hate to think what would happen to National league batsmen if Alexander's "dead arm" ever came to life again.

Shorten, the Red Sox's new outfielder, has cut some nifty capers since opening day. He is especially long on hitting.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Cardinals, expects Lee Meadows to pitch more games than any other Card pitcher this year.

A leaky bucket, a punctured tire, and a pitcher without support are about the same in that they get about the same results.

Hugh Jennings still has faith in "Bill" James and believes the big pitcher will come through and prove a big help to the Tigers.

Wilbert Robinson hasn't played actively for more'n a decade, but he's the greatest ground coverer in the National league—when he sits down.

Cleveland is baseball mad. The fans of that city are certainly entitled to do some celebrating, for they have waited long enough for the opportunity.

Connie Mack says that the Athletics did not get good weather on the training trip and that his young pitchers could not get the right kind of a start.

SAUGERTIES.

Saugerties, May 31.—Memorial Day was appropriately observed in Saugerties. The weather conditions were favorable and the program arranged by J. R. Tappen Post, G. A. Hamlin Uniformed Rank, K. of P., St. Mary's Commandery, Knights of St. John, Esopus Tribe, Independent Order of Red Men, Washington Hook and Ladder Co., and the Boy Scouts with their drum corps marched to Mountain View Cemetery, where the exercises were held. In the afternoon, under the direction of the Women's Relief Corps, the following program was carried out at the Ophium Theater:

The Saugerties and New York Steamboat Co. ran two boats to New York city on Tuesday night to accommodate the number of visitors who spent Memorial Day in Saugerties, one boat leaving at 6 o'clock and the other at 7 o'clock.

The Hennegan Baseball Club was defeated twice on Decoration Day by the DePeyster Baseball Club of Madalin. The score for the morning game was: DePeysters, 15; Hennegan, 7, played at Madalin. The afternoon game at Saugerties: DePeysters, 4; Hennegan, 3. There was a large attendance at both games.

United States Tread Chain Tires

Experience, the Teacher of Tire Lessons

The experience of your last week-end holiday trip has told you something about the tires you use—

—That they are, or they are not, the particular tires suited to your particular car.

Experience taught the United States Tire Company that all tires are not suited to all cars.

That is why the United States Tire Company makes five different tires—a tire to meet every need of price and use—the only complete line offered by any tire manufacturer.

One of the five is made for your car—will give you the lowest cost per mile.

"Cannon Ball" Baker's transcontinental world's record car was equipped with United States "Balanced" Tires. Baker says: "No other tires would have stood the test."

COAL ADVANCES ON THURSDAY

Just How Much of a Jump in Price There Will Be Local Dealers Were Unable to State Today.

As foretold in The Freeman some time ago the first of June will see an advance in the retail price of coal in this city, due to the fact that the wholesale price has been jumped to the retailers. None of the local dealers were in a position today to quote June prices.

From what could be learned there will be an advance in price, but just how much is not known. One retail dealer, when asked today, said that he thought that the June prices for coal would be given out on Thursday.

In this connection, The Freeman prints a letter received last March from a prominent retired business man of Rondout whose prophecy has been fulfilled:

Kingston, March 4, 1916. Editor Daily Freeman: I notice in The Freeman of yesterday that you are at a loss about the coal strike and the price of coal. I can tell you what the price will be. Last year, I believe, the price started on April 1st with $6 for stove and egg coal, $6.25 for chestnut. It would raise 10 cents every month, so by October 1st it would cost $6.50 per ton of probably 2,000 pounds. That price would continue until April 1st. There will be lots of talk about a strike from now on until in April some time, and the price will be $6.50 on April 1st, and then advance as usual 10 cents per month. Of course the miners will get from 5 to 10 cents per ton more than last year and it will therefore be necessary to raise the price 50 cents per ton, so the operators will be somewhat protected. There will not be any more coal strikes in my opinion, for this is the easiest way to settle the strikes, the poor coal operators can fight the consumers easier than the miners.

SOLDIER ROBBED BY CARRANZA OFFICERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, May 31.—General Funston today reported to the war department details of the experiences of Corporal James Peoples, Troop C, Tenth Cavalry, who was robbed and held captive by a band of Carranzistas commanded by an American. Peoples escaped by felling a sentry with a plank. General Funston sent the department the following report of General George Bell, commanding American forces at El Paso:

"Corporal Peoples, Troop C, 10th Cavalry, arrived in El Paso today (May 30) in ragged clothing, stating that he had been robbed by three Carranzista officers. He had $326 in his shoes, which belonged to other members of the troop. Robbed of $176, of which $76 was his own."

"On May 19, with a detachment under Lieutenant Adair which consisted of two officers and a veterinarian, Carranza taking worn out horses back from the front. Peoples went about 500 yards from the camp to find a place in the river deep enough to swim. After taking his swim, he went to sleep in the shade with his pistol under his head. He was awakened by three Mexicans, who, after searching him, made him a prisoner, marched him to their camp where his captors changed their civilian clothes and appeared in uniforms of Carranza officers. One was afterward shot because he would not divide the money. There were about 350 Carranza soldiers, two of whom were Americans, one about 29 years old and the other younger. The younger man stated the elder one was a colonel and was in command of the troops. He (Peoples) states he was beaten because he would not give more money. He was stripped of his underclothes. On Wednesday night was taken over by a sentry whom he hid over the head with a plank and made his escape. He picked up a pair of old pants and a hat and was given a shirt by a friendly Mexican, who told him the soldiers were looking for him."

KINGSTON DEFEATED
FAST ALBANY TEAM

Won First Game of Doubleheader by Score of 2 to 0—Second Game Stopped by Rain—Plays Fast Teams Saturday and Sunday.

The fast Kingston baseball club won the first game of what was to be a doubleheader at McVey's field on Decoration Day afternoon when the fast Albany Southern Club went down to defeat by a score of 2 to 0. Kissam of Newburgh was on the mound for Kingston and Schirick of this city was on the receiving end. The entire game was replete with thrilling plays and as many as five double plays were pulled off. The second game also promised to be a thriller but only ran three innings with the score 0 and 0 when the heavy downpour of rain put a stop to the game. Williams and Cragin were in the points for Kingston in the second game.

Kingston will have a busy week for Saturday afternoon they are slated to play the fast Fabrikoid Club of Newburgh. This game will be staged on the Athletic Field at 3 o'clock that afternoon.

Sunday afternoon at McVey's field on Delaware avenue the Kingstons will clash with the Garnets of Albany. The locals were recently slated to play the Albany team, but the game was called off on account of the illness of a resident near the baseball field. The game Sunday is called for 3 o'clock.

HIGH SCHOOL
DEFEATS TROY

Yesterday afternoon the high school nine cleaned up the nicest victory of the season so far when they nosed out one more run than the up-state high school champions could make, and finished the game with five runs against Troy's four.

The two teams kept the same pace throughout nearly the whole game. When Troy, who was first up, scored a run, the local players lost no time in doing likewise.

As usual Wheeler, Johnson and Terwilliger did the heavy hitting, while Peyer, who has had no training on the diamond this year, more than filled in the vacancy caused by the absence of one of the players. Relyea continued to nail down everything that came toward first base and Johnson duplicated his performance on third. The battery seemed at times a little out of gear but from the beginning of the fifth on to the close of the game they did everything to redeem themselves and to retain their former glory.

Game by Innings.

The first inning saw the Trojans lead off with two runs, made by Landugan and Cropsy, but it also saw Johnson make a neat base hit that resulted in his being brought in by a home run hit of Terwilliger's which combined both good luck and good management for besides "T's" work with the big stick there was another important part that was played by the long grass over by the side fence. The right fielder must surely have been a saint if he exercised control over his choice of words while vainly searching for that ball, which fate had made to slip through his hands. Relyea also hit for one base but went out at second.

In the second inning neither team scored a run, although little Mac donated a base on balls to the visitors' center fielder.

The first man up for Troy in the third, Macey, brought home a run, which Wheeler lost no time in duplicating. Johnson, after stealing his way around the bases, just missed making a run by about two feet.

In the fourth Mac handed a visitor by the name of Potter a base on balls and that gentleman being forced to second by another base on balls decided to complete the round so Troy got her fourth and last run. Kingston failed to tie this run in her half of the inning, but made up for lost time later on.

The fifth and sixth were carried through by both sides in the one, two, three order, and Troy started to do the same with the seventh. However, Kingston happened to remember she needed a run about this time, so Joyce, being hit at bat, trotted down to first and at convenient intervals he trotted around the other three bases in like manner. This made the score four all.

The eighth saw Wheeler make a three-base hit and it also saw him wend his way across the plate again when Johnson planted a nice hit to left field.

Troy accomplished nothing in the ninth so Kingston did not need to complete the inning. Troy was compelled to leave the field with the first defeat she has sustained in a long, long time.

The Summary.

The Troy nine stole six bases and made two sacrifice hits, but no two-base hits or three baggers. Their pitcher struck out four men, gave two a base on balls and hit one man. On the other hand the Kingston fellows stole nine bases, made no sacrifice hits or two base hits but did make a home run and a three-bagger. The local fellows also made two double plays. Their pitcher pitched the whole game, struck out six men, hit two men and gave three a base on balls.

The umpire was Schwab and the box score was as follows:
Troy, 2b 4 1 1 3 0 1
Landugan, lf 4 1 1 3 0 1
Cropsy, ss 4 1 2 1 2 0
Benedict, c 4 0 0 7 0 0

Seventeen straight, though, is some showing for a team considered the "joke of the league."

But the defeat was sweetened by the fact that they took their revenge later and made Alexander the Great abdicate.

Al Demaree is sure some cartoonist. He drew rings around the Giants.

The Browns, Red Sox and Pirates were the only ones to come through with a clean slate on the holiday. The Red Sox defeated the league leaders in both games, the Browns trimmed the Indians in the first game and battled to a tie in the second, while the only game between the Reds and the Pirates went to the plank walkers.

Love pitched for the Yankees. That's all Donovan's met got—tennis speaking.

Two more games with the Phillies and then the Giants will sing "My Home Town."

The World Champions seem to be coming back to life. They are now four games behind the leaders.

The Dodgers refuse to be shaken from the top of the ladder.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, May 31.—Bill McKechnie's career as a Giant third baseman reads like a tale from the pen of some fiction writer who specializes in making heroes out of seeming dubs.

Just before the bugle sent the National League clubs into action in April, Hans Lobert, slated to do the third sacking chores for the Giants, was wounded.

"It will be six weeks or two months before Lobert's leg mends sufficiently to enable him to get back into the game," announced the medical gent. Thereupon, John McGraw played. Fred Brainerd at third, and Brainerd promptly mended things in a horrid way.

"Help! Help! Gimme a third baseman!" shrieked John.

"Your're on!" said John. And Bill became a Giant a day or two later. "I can render you succor," said a voice. It was that of Harry Sinclair. "I offer you Bill McKechnie. He managed and played third base for my Newark Federal Club last year. Bill's a pretty good ball player. Want him? I've quit the baseball business and I'll let you have Bill at a bargain price."

"You're on!" said John. And Bill became a Giant a day or two later. For nearly two weeks Bill McKechnie played regularly—and went hitless. Bill, it seemed, was a flivver—very much of a flivver. Oh, yes, Bill was fielding quite well—but the Giants needed a little macing help, too.

One day in Boston, Bill made his first hit as a Giant. The players became so jubilant over it that it annoyed his unpractical majesty, William Klem. So Bill chased a large flock of Giants to the clubhouse because they had fractured the afternoon quiet with their cheers.

McGraw became hopeful when McKechnie made that hit. He figured Bill probably had chased the jinx. But not yet. Bill continued to go up to the plate and do everything but hit safely.

Finally, John benched Bill and played a youngster named Hunter on third. Hunter showed up well afield and although he didn't do any tremendous batting he was clubbing far beyond Bill's average.

But Hunter lasted only a day or two. Then he was wounded and had to retire from the frolic.

"Ye Gods! Ye Gods!" exclaimed John McGraw at that moment. "What shall I do? Oh, what shall I do? Lobert and Hunter on the hospital list and McKechnie as good as a wooden Indian."

But there was only one thing for him to do—and he did it. He put Bill McKechnie, the flivver, back on third, while the fans groaned in despair.

Meanwhile John was trying in every way to land another third baseman. But he failed. And with Bill as the third sack regular—Bill, who was hitting just slightly above .000—the Giants started on what proved to be a triumphal swing through the west.

And from out of the smoke of those 13 battles, Bill McKechnie, the despised flivver, emerges as the real hero. Almost as soon as the Giants got onto foreign soil, Bill began to hit—and how he did! He hit 'em when once started. He became the demon clouter of the team. Time and again his timely bingles put the Giants into the fight or helped them to win games. Practically every time Bill was called upon to make a hit in a pinch, he delivered. Bill clubbed the offerings of those western heavens for an average close to 400 in those 13 games—and he hasn't shut off the hitting habit yet. He has found his batting eyes—and he is belting almost everything that comes his way. Not only did McKechnie hit with much vim and gusto, but his fielding was especially brilliant. No third sacker in the country pulled so many remarkable plays over a 13 game stretch as did Bill. He covered ground and killed off at least a score of seeming sure hits by dazzling stops and throws. "McKechnie's comeback was one of the big factors in winning those 13 straight for us," declared McGraw.

"When he began to hit—and to hit when hits meant runs—it inspired the other boys. And they just put everything they had into every inning—and thirteen straight wins in the west was the result." In conclusion, we wish to state that about the only way Hans Lobert can get back his old job is to throw Bill into the Hudson river some dark night. Meanwhile, the Gotham fans are debating as to whether they will present Bill with the Brooklyn bridge and the Metropolitan Museum, or give him $5,000,000 in cash and nominate him for the presidency.

ACCORD.

Accord, May 31.—Two of our progressive farmers, D. E. Schoonmaker and Walter Davenport motored to Poughkeepsie last Friday and purchased new Delaval cream separators. Edward Davenport and several of his Ellenville high school friends enjoyed a motor trip to Port Jervis Friday evening. Miss Grace Lester, who was taken very ill with pleuro-pneumonia, while at Wurtsboro last week, was brought home by automobile Saturday night. Her condition is quite serious. Charles Anderson and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Decker, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gazlay, and Mrs. Mary Anderson spent Sunday with Mrs. Clara Evans, former Miss Anderson, at Warden, N. Y. The home of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Decker has been beautified by the addition of an elegant new piano. Prof. F. J. Schumaker of the Kingston high school was a weekend guest at the home of D. E. Schoonmaker. Friends from out of town are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilklow. S. J. Wyncoop is installing a water system at Mr. Lederman's. Howard Schoonmaker had a narrow escape from serious injury Sunday, when the horse he was driving stumbled and fell, throwing him under the horse's heels. The horse remained quiet and Mr. Schoonmaker escaped with a few bruises.

You can't "spell-bind" many men into liking what they dislike—every man's taste is his own

IF A MANUFACTURER in his advertising tells you (truthfully, as he believes) that he has the "best tasting cigarette in the world" and you believe him, you probably try his cigarette. It may be a very good cigarette. But his over-enthusiasm has led you to expect something almost impossible. You light that cigarette and—

Well, there's a good chance that you're disappointed. It may not be the fault of the cigarette. The cigarette may be mighty good. But you've been led to expect too much. You've been "over-sold." And besides, tastes differ—who can tell what cigarette will best please your taste before you try it?

That's why we leave the taste of Fatimas entirely up to you. We believe you will like them; but you may not.

To be sure, most men like the taste of Fatimas better than any other cigarette they ever smoked. Figures indicate that. More

Fatimas are sold than any other cigarette in the world costing over 5c.

But the taste isn't all. If you do like Fatimas' taste as well as these thousands and thousands of other men do, you'll find a second reason for sticking to them for good. And that reason is that Fatimas will give you cigarette-comfort at all times. This is why they have won the name of being as SENSIBLE a cigarette as a man can find anywhere.

They are comfortable to the throat and tongue. You'll never experience any "sandpaper tickle" or "hotness" in the cool-smoking Turkish blend of Fatimas.

And Fatimas can be smoked more freely than any other cigarette we know of without leaving any mean after-feeling, as some less skillfully blended cigarettes do. If you have never smoked Fatimas—you should try them.

ROOSEVELT ATTACKS HYPHEN IN SPEECH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., May 31.—Theodore Roosevelt appealed to St. Louisians here today to be true Americans, like Franz Sigel, Carl Schurz and the nine regiments all with colonels of German descent who went from this city to fight for the Union in the Civil War.

His speech was tactful and persuasive. He described numerous Americans of German blood who have been for America first, last and all the time.

He repeated his statement that it would be possible to "man the entire administration from President down with men of German blood, and of such uncompromising Americanism that every good American could follow them with whole-hearted loyalty."

In bringing about racial groups for special interests, he said, Americans of foreign birth are injuring their own descendants, who must live now, be Americans and intermarry with Americans.

"We in this country form a new nation, akin to, but different from, each of the nations of Europe," he said. "Our duty is to the United States. This duty should constrain us in the first place to treat the other nations primarily according to the way such treatment serves American interests; and in the second place so far as possible to treat other nations in such manner as serves the interest of mankind at large."

"The American of German descent, who goes to Germany is not looked upon as a German. He is looked upon and treated as a foreigner, as an American, and his ways of thought are different from the ways of thought of the people of the land. If either the American of English descent or the American of German descent or the American of any other descent tries to remain with a dual allegiance, with a divided citizenship, he merely ceases to be an American without thereby, for he is a German or an Englishman or anything else."

"He becomes a man without a country who has forfeited the right to be styled by the feeling of patriotic devotion to cry land or to have a flag and peculiar kinship with any people."

Mr. Roosevelt said the German-American Alliance is an anti-American Alliance. It is blazoned forth in the public press," he said, "that the branches of this alliance are attempting to coerce timid and unscrupulous politicians by threatening to vote against them, or by actually voting against them when the German-American Alliance records their action as unsatisfactory from the standpoint not of the United States but of Germany."

While condemning the Americans who defend German misdeeds in the war he said he believed that the "great mass of Americans of German origin are now, as they have always been, among the most patriotic and loyal citizens in this country."

In the Civil War he added a zone of moderate German origin, that of old Colonial stock, were local and time-honored of Missouri, Maryland and Kentucky were prevented from joining the Confederacy by the strong German element.

Mr. Roosevelt concluded:

"I appeal to all our citizens no matter from what land their forefathers came to keep this ever in hand and to shun with scorn and contempt the sinister influences and mischievous makers who would seek to divide them along lines of creed or birthplace or of national origin. I ask them to remember that there is but one citizenship for all Americans no matter whether they were born here or abroad, no matter from what land their ancestors came, and that is the simple and loyal motto, AMERICA FOR AMERICANS."

Decoration Day Notes.

A party of young people members of the Kukuk Club, chaperoned by Miss Clearwater and Mrs. C. N. Reed, enjoyed a Decoration Day outing to Bear Mountain Park.

While the stars and stripes fluttered brightly from every wall, cars of New York Central and West Shore trains on Tuesday, the big excursion steamer, Grand Republic, carrying a big crowd up the river had not so much as the smallest American flag, or any other pennant in evidence.

Large numbers of excursionists and picnicers visited West Point on Decoration Day.

Bear Mountain Park, that splendid park which is one of the most appreciated features of the work accomplished by the Interstate Commerce Commission, was visited by crowds of people on Decoration Day. In fact so large a number of persons visited the park, that the service at the inn was taxed to its capacity, and the double line of autos parked all about the inn and lake section of the park looked like a mobilization for preparedness. There were literally hundreds to be seen at one time, from any high point overlooking the immediate roadways.

Cake Sale.

The Rondout Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Circle, of which Mrs. Frank R. Fowler and Mrs. Charles G. Ellis are chairmen, will hold a sale of cakes at the home of Mrs. Frank R. Fowler on Friday afternoon, June 2, commencing at 2 o'clock. The young ladies of Mrs. Fowler's Circle will serve fresh strawberry ice cream on the porch and Mrs. Ellis's Circle will have a sale of homespun porch pillow covers. These are "smart" pillows in black and white stripes and summery clouded blues and greens with chintzy borders. The ladies also have plant sticks, turned with brilliant painted butterflies poised for flight and orders will be taken for flower boxes of a curious Chinese pottery with a decoration of flowers and figures of birds, animals and flowers in bright colors. The public are cordially invited.

The Story of a Grain of wheat

I was born in a great field in the far West.

As my little green body first reared upward through the loamy soil, I laughed for the very joy of living. For a gentle sun beamed down on me—a fertile land promised me a strong and healthy life.

Rapidly I increased in strength. Gentle rains nourished me. Warm winds gave me up-springing life.

And then came a day when they took me away from my birthplace. I traveled for many days and nights.

Finally I came to a great mill.

They handled me tenderly there. They cooked me in barley malt. They rolled me to a thin flakiness. They toasted me. Always carefully, always gently.

And now they call me "FORCE."

"FORCE" in its waxed paper jacket is sealed flavor-tight and moisture-proof. As near as the nearest grocer's.

"FORCE" TOASTED WHEAT FLAKES

I am "FORCE." I am whole wheat. I am proud of my mission of health and nourishment.

Try me. I am on your grocer's shelf. I come at your bidding.

Fascinating lingerie frocks are shown in white net with some form of detail trimming that proves most effective as contrast. Net is undoubtedly most popular because it is so serviceable. Very often lace either in fillet or cluny pattern is combined, this lending a very rich trimming note. The frock illustrated is developed in white net, bound with narrow folds of satin. The very wide underskirt is befrilled with net and fanning of ribbon. Dainty clusters of flowers here and there afford a charming color note.

MAJOR CHANDLER ON WEST POINT EXAMINING BOARD

Under the new law which federalizes the National Guard, that body is now part of the regular army of the United States. The scarcity of trained officers has made it necessary to increase the number of students at the national academy at West Point.

The new law affords an opportunity for enlisted men of the army and the National Guard to get into the academy outside of the usual appointments by congressmen. The men are chosen by competitive examination and the first of these examinations under the new law is held at Albany today in the executive chambers. There are 30 candidates from the guard and the regular army trying these examinations today and only five of these will be chosen, as that is the number allowed to New York state.

The examining board consists of seven officers from the army and the guard. Major George Chandler of this city, graduate of the Fort Leavenworth army service schools, has been appointed to serve on this board. It is the first time that officers from the National Guard have ever served as examiners for entrance to West Point and marks the national change of feeling.

No longer is the militia referred to as "tin soldiers." The change in sentiment may be seen in the press, in the people, and most notably among army men. Requirements for a commission in the guard are just as rigid as in the army, and the whole body of state troops throughout the country is now looked upon as part of our bulwark of national defense.

Church and the Workers.

The asking of questions is the beginning of wisdom. The child's education, the scientist's discoveries, the business man's success and the politician's advancement depend on their skill and success in asking and answering questions. The pastor of the Round Presbyterian Church has asked and a number of the men of Kingston have answered his questions. An interesting feature of the experience has been, however, that they have given a great variety of answers. These questions and answers afford unique material for the Sunday evening sermons. No answer, however, different from the pastor's opinion, is neglected or refused an answer. The question for Sunday evening, June 4, is "If the Church is Not in Touch How Can it Get in Touch With the Working Classes and Shopmen?" What do the men of Kingston think of this matter? If there is any one who would like to express his opinions on this subject who has not already done so, the pastor will be glad to give his answer consideration on Sunday evening.

Gas Company Cooking School.

Starting today the cooking lectures and demonstrations arranged by the Kingston Gas & Electric Company, open in St. Joseph's school hall in charge of Caroline Putnam Webber, one of the leading cooking experts in the country. The lectures and demonstrations will be held daily each afternoon at 2 o'clock, the school holding its final session on Saturday afternoon. Every housewife in the city is invited to attend. The demonstrations will show the way to make the cleanest and most wholesome preparations for the table and those who attend will learn how to best use meats and vegetables and to make the best of pastry.

MISS GEORGETTE LENHARDT, 301 WALL ST., SUFFRAGE.

New York, May 31.—Woman suffrage and beauty are not incompatible according to a report just issued by a suffrage statistician who declares that more than one ton of flowers, parcelled out in seventy-five automobiles, were sold by suffrage workers in one day on Manhattan's busiest corner, for the "cause" fund. Some of the women were at work all night decorating the autos and getting the flowers ready for the sale. Except for some flowers, which wilted in the heat of the day, the flower sale was a great success. One of the most successful flower sellers was Miss Georgette Lenhardt.

CURIOUS BREADS.

Some Old World Makes Serve as Curtain or Wedding Rings.

Every nation has a bread that is typically its own. In one or flour is used, in another wheat or rice or cassava, and the shape varies from the disklike Scandinavian hardtack that has a hole at the center for convenience in packing them away on poles in the farmhouse to our own plump loaves that come out of the oven in the well known form.

The bread of the Balkans, curiously made in the form of chains, is sold from the arms and necks of itinerant peddlers. In tent life in Balkania the detached links are often used for fun at quills or serve a more useful purpose in suspending temporary curtains and awnings. Then when the campers run out of provisions they literally eat their curtain rings! The Japanese bamboo bread, so named from its shape, is a somewhat similar product. It is sliced and sold in strings.

One of the strangest of biscuits comes from Russia. It is known as the mouth biscuit and, besides being much appreciated as a tea biscuit, is quite commonly used by merchants ignorant of the three R's as a makeshift abacus in counting money—a lower string of ten serving for kopecks and an upper string of the same number representing rubles. More picturesque still is its usage as an extemporized ring for marrying poor peasants with whom the gold ring is lacking.—London Telegraph.

Making a Scrap Book.

Mankind may be divided into two classes, those who preserve fugitive clippings and those who don't. Among the former are many who for lack of classification become victims of their own belongings. They clip assiduously, they lay aside newspapers containing articles they wish to keep for reference, and they postpone the task of sorting and arrangement to the rainy day or the interval of leisure which never arrives. Presently they are dismayed to find themselves confronted by a pile of ephemeral literature mountain high, wherein it seems hopeless even to blaze a trail. That is where the person of methodical, orderly habits shows his irritating superiority. With him day by day has uttered wisdom: he has tabulated and pigeonholed his stores as they came to his hand. It does not prove that you are literary and learned to raise a vast rubbish heap around yourself or to live in a state that suggests the gift of a Zepherus. Those who keep scrapbooks are likely to reckon them among the most precious items in their libraries.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Most of Us Know Him.

Reliability

OUR absolute faith in the Maxwell car is due to two reasons: First, we have known that the Maxwell Company uses nothing in the entire car but the very best that money can buy. We have known that the steel is scientifically heat treated, that the car is built under the supervision of able engineers, that every car is rigidly tested many times before it leaves the factory.

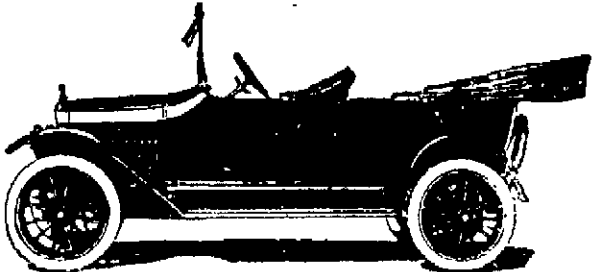

Second, we have known that the big and well established company behind the car is building for the future, that they value a satisfied owner above everything else.

Now that the Maxwell has set the World's Motor Non-Stop Mileage Record, by travelling continuously for 44 days and nights—averaging 500 miles per day—you will understand the benefits you personally may derive from the Maxwell policy. Did you ever hear of any car going 22,000 miles without once stopping the engine, without any repairs or readjustments, with only one gallon of gasoline to every 22 miles?

There is no reason why you shouldn't have a reliable, serviceable and economical Maxwell car. The first cost is low, the operating cost is low and our pay-as-you-ride plan makes the purchase easy for everyone.

Let us see you about this now, before our allotment is exhausted.

Modern Nail-Making Methods

An excellent illustration of the difference between old and new methods is the ordinary common nail. Formerly the metal was cut into strips and then forged into shape with hammers, and an expert took about one minute and a half to each nail. Today they are made of steel and are lighter and stronger. Strips are cut with steam shears and fed into automatic nail machines. One man tends three machines, which drop a nail every second.

MANY VISITORS AT SENATE HOUSE

While the state institutions are always closed on holidays, the custodian of the Senate House was on duty and there was a surprisingly large number of visitors from a distance who looked over the scene of the first legislative gathering in the Empire State. The registry contained names from persons as far west as Minnesota and there were many motor parties en route through the Catskills who stopped off for a few moments at the Senate House but who failed to register in many cases.

Kingston people at the Senate House during the day found much to admire in the addition of the beautiful little flower garden which nestles close to the walls of the old Dutch kitchen in the north wing. These were recently placed by Mrs. Edward Coykendall as head of the committee from the Garden Club where the suggestion originated. The vigilance eye of the police department is being directed on these flowers and an example will be made of the first offender caught in the act of "sniping" any of the blossoms which have been placed with such care as permanent additions to the Senate House yard.

Hundreds of people motored through the city during the day on pleasure bent among the Catskills or at resorts along the river.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

Samuel Affron has just received his new 1916 Buick six.

"A so-called co-operative organization," says Farm and Fireside, "offers automobile owners the opportunity to secure standard makes of tires, supplies, and various accessories at exceedingly low prices. First you must join the association, which is done by paying an annual fee of $10. Then you receive a catalogue which is similar to the catalogues of prominent accessory houses, but it contains a discount sheet quoting prices in some cases lower than the cost of manufacture. But when you send in your order for the standard goods listed you receive a reply that they are 'just out' of those goods, and you are urged to purchase an unknown brand which they carry. The joker in the whole scheme is a little clause in the contract which says that they will furnish the standard goods 'when in stock.' Many representatives of one of these organizations in Canada were tried on the charge of fraud, and pleaded guilty. The American Automobile Association reports the existence of similar associations in this country."

The office of Public Roads, which is a part of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, has used three low-priced cars in supervising maintenance of the Washington-Atlanta highway. These machines have furnished an excellent opportunity for securing accurate figures on the cost of operation. The cars were in use all of the year 1915. The total mileage of the three machines was over 62,000 miles. Two of the cars ran over 22,000 miles each, during the year, and the cost per mile in one case was 3.97 cents and in the other 4.07 cents. The other car ran 16,228 miles, and cost 4.75 cents per mile. Roughly speaking, the cost of running a light car may be said to be between four and five cents a mile. These figures include the cost of overhauling all the cars, also storage charges, which aggregated $170. The greatest item in all cases was that of miscellaneous expense. After that came gasoline, which cost about a cent a mile and was about a quarter of the total cost. Tire casings, lubricating oil, and miscellaneous tire costs were next in importance. Grease was the most insignificant figure of all, costing but one thirtieth of a cent per mile. The automobiles were found to be considerably cheaper than livery service.

At Kingston Point Casino.

Indications are for a good business at Kingston Point this summer if the Memorial Day crowd counted for anything and throughout the afternoon patronage was brisk at all of the amusement concessions. Messrs. Bernstein, Virgil Everett and Stephen Miller, who have charge of the Casino this season, had a most successful opening with hundreds of out of town people in attendance during the afternoon while many city people enjoyed the dancing during the evening. The next public dance will be held on Saturday night.

A Creditable Service.

The memorial services for the sailor dead held at Kingston Point last Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans, was a very impressive ceremony, and the auxiliary are to be congratulated upon the success with which the program was carried through. This is only the second time that such a service has been held in this city, and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans have had charge of the services on both occasions.

Stage was Upset.

While delivering milk at the side entrance of the Kingston Dairy on Downs street Tuesday morning, the team attached to the High Falls stage became frightened and started to run. As the horses turned into the street, the stage capsize and their mad career. The vehicle was soon righted with little damage to its contents, no passengers being aboard at the time.

A large congregation was present at the Reformed Church Sunday evening. The Rev. Walter S. Maines, pastor, delivered a very able memorial sermon. The theme was, "The Battle of Principles." Members of Ward Post, G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans were present in a body.

The decorations of the church were large and small American flags. The Rev. W. H. Moser offered prayer. The choir rendered a very fine anthem entitled, "Stand Firm for the Cause of Truth." Following the close of the very excellent sermon, the choir sang softly "Tenting Tonight." The service closed by the choir and congregation singing very heartily, "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Ulster Shore Camp at Ulster Heights had a large number of guests at their opening on Saturday, and a large number of guests over Sunday and Memorial Day. A large company of Ellenville people were at Sayer Camp above Wawarsing over Sunday and the Wayside Inn entertained many guests over Sunday and the Mitchell House was crowded. Many visitors in Ellenville coming from New York, Brooklyn, New Jersey towns, Kingston, Newburgh, Cortland, Poughkeepsie, Port Jervis, Monticello and Liberty.

Memorial Day was very quietly observed in Ellenville. All business places, schools, banks, and public library remained closed. The American flag held sway on nearly all the village homes. At 9 o'clock the Ward Post, G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans headed by the martial music, marched to Faintekill cemetery, and after placing the flag and flowers on the soldiers graves all gathered around the soldiers' monument, where a brief service was held. The G. A. R. men, and friends returned to the Ward Post rooms, where the Sons of Veterans had prepared with the assistance of the ladies a very fine dinner, to which all did ample justice. Rev. Walter S. Maines was present and gave an excellent talk to the Veterans, Sons and friends.

The races held by the Ellenville Driving Park Association at the driving park on Decoration Day were good, and a good crowd present enjoyed the races. All half mile heats, best 3 in 5, where free for all. Two horses were entered, Dr. Weaver by John M. Watson, Ellenville and Dr. Chase by Dewitt Beach, High Falls. Dr. Weaver driven by E. P. Miss Annie E. Merritt, a former resident of Ellenville and Wawarsing, very delightfully entertained the members of the Lutheran Thimble Club at her home, 59 Walnut street, Binghamton, N. Y., on Tuesday, May 23. The afternoon was pleasantly spent, with needlework and crocheting, after which a course supper was served. White lilacs adorned the tables at which covers were laid for fourteen. Following the supper there was a brief business session, during which the secretary's report was read and plans were made for a picnic to be held at the home of Mrs. William Ash on Riverside Drive. A pleasant social evening was enjoyed. Among the guests were Mrs. M. J. Bieber of Ottawa, Canada and Miss Ada Wilbur.

One of the most successful dances ever given was held at the Wayside Inn Monday evening. There was a large attendance. A number of guests were present from Kingston. Muller's famous orchestra of Kingston furnished the music, which was pronounced as very entrancing. Many elegant costumes were worn by the ladies.

A National Potash Hunt.

According to Farm and Fireside, the national farm paper published in Springfield, Ohio, the United States Geological Survey is now engaged in explorations of the panhandle of Texas for deposits of potash salt. The studies in this region made by Professor Udden of Texas seem to warrant the expenditure of public money in the search. There is some interesting development in the potash situation.

"A commercial company is making a small amount daily from a mineral called alunite in Utah. There is not enough alunite known to exist to furnish our supply, however. The great Seales Lake brine reservoir is in litigation between two companies one of which claims exclusive title to it; but Seales Lake, though larger, also falls short of a possible supply. Many chemists, some of them backed by capital, are working to get potash from the common stone known as felspar, but the processes do not seem to work commercially. There is plenty of potash in the giant kelps of the Pacific Ocean—a huge seaweed—but its recovery presents at least two problems yet unsolved. One of these problems is the harvesting of the kelp and the other is the drying of it.

Imagine the problem of drying millions of tons of cabbage or rape to get something sold out of the plant, and one has not yet quite imagined the kelp problem, for kelp is water than cabbage or rape. Add to the situation the fact that as soon as the war is over the Germans will be in the field with the Strassfurt salts, which they have probably never sold as cheaply as they could if they had to, and one realizes that a man will think twice before putting his money into any new process or plan of getting potash from American sources. But if in the panhandle or elsewhere concentrated deposits are found which resemble those of Germany the case will be different. The problem, in short, will be solved. Therefore good luck to the explorers of the Geological Survey."

Cleanliness!

Cleanliness is one of the best life preservers known to science. Cleanliness of the body, of the teeth and of the attire all help to ward off disease and win the battles of life. And cleanliness is not hard to get. There are aids that assist and most of them are inexpensive. There are good soaps and tooth preparations, brushes of standard make and many valuable toilet requisites. The best of these are sold under certain branded names that are a guarantee of character. These good brands are advertised from time to time in the columns of The Freeman.

BOY SCOUTS DANCE WAS A SUCCESS

The Boy Scouts of the city terminated their day's activities and celebration with a big dance at the Armory Tuesday evening. The music by Muller was excellent and the dancing was enjoyed by a large crowd of people. The boys gave two exhibition drills which were something new and although they had been drilled but three times before the work was heartily praised by those who witnessed the drills. Although the two drill officers were absent Rosenthal took command and put the troop through 'the drill' in a manner which brought forth great praise for the boys. Although there were 81 boys in the parade in the morning but 61 drilled, still it made a line which extended from one end of the armory to the other and many commented upon the excellent manner in which the boys performed and expressed their opinion that the work was of as high order as though the boys had been drilled all winter.

The officers of the local council feel that Decoration Day, 1916, has been a red letter day for the Scouts, as it put them on the map in the majority of the minds of the people of the city. A year ago the organization was known to but few, but interest has been aroused in the order and many Kingstonians will give their approval to this worthy cause.

In the estimation of many the outdoor school for the Boy Scouts is as necessary as the indoor work and we now spend many thousands of dollars for the training of the boys' minds but there our system of education stops. The Boy Scout movement takes up the education where the school stops and teaches them not only thorough knowledge of outdoor life and care in emergencies of themselves and their comrades, but also teaches them cleanliness in all its branches and any boy in the United States who has gone through several years of Boy Scout work under the proper guidance will realize that he has gained in strength, health and happiness a great deal more by his outdoor training than he has by the indoor training.

The work in Kingston is in its infancy as there are but about 80 boys in this city who have joined in the work, while in the United States there are over 176,000 boys.

Those in charge of the development of the organization showed that the boys are taking an interest in the work and the people of Kingston should now take an interest in the boys and give them their cooperation.

CLARENCE ROWLAND WILL HE STICK OR GO?

Chicago, May 31.—Considerable dissatisfaction is being expressed by the Chicago fans, concerning the poor showing of the White Sox in the American League pennant race. As usual, Manager Clarence Rowland is the target for the bad feelings of the fans, and rumors that Rowland, who came up from the minors last year to lead the Sox, is to be deposed are current. On the other hand, Charles Comiskey, owner of the team, declares that Rowland is to stick. The baseball going public can take its choice.

A Tribute Appreciated.

Kingston, N. Y., May 31, 1916. Mr. Editor: With your permission I wish to convey the thanks of the colored soldiers still living, and in loving remembrance of those buried in Mt. Zion cemetery, to the principal teachers and children of Public School No. 1. For thirty years they have been paying a beautiful tribute to the colored soldiers who lie in Mt. Zion cemetery by strewing flowers upon their graves. They started this beautiful custom under Principal John Moran, and have continued it under Principal Murphy, and yesterday, though sorely pressed for time, on account of taking part in the parade, they followed their usual custom. Surely they are carrying out the principle of the brotherhood of mankind as taught by the blessed Saviour. God bless them. GEO. F. KIRSTED.

Over the Viaduct.

Just where the Washington team will finish this year is a matter of conjecture. Some wise ones have named as low as sixth place for Griffith's outfit, but the team should do better than this, for it has been materially strengthened.

The Nationals' pitching staff, among the best in the American league, is stronger this season than last.

Foster is playing the best ball of his career and this is also true of Milan. Ray Morgan is in great condition and Griffith started with a team better, collectively, than he has ever had before.

MANAGER PICKS UP PLAYERS

Pat Moran Will Not Pay Fancy Prices for Ball Tossers—Holds on to Expensive Stars.

Since Pat Moran has been in charge of the Phillies he has purchased only three players—Pitchers McQuillen and Karl Adams and Outfielder Good—and for each of these he paid the waiver price. He did not draft a man last fall, and he obtained the right to sign Outfielder Cooper for nothing.

Moran picked up Chief Bender and George Chalmers when they were free agents. He traded Doolin to Cincinnati for Niehoff and let Lobert go to the Giants in exchange for Stock, Demaree and Jack Adams, catcher. He obtained Whitted from the Braves, together with Infielder Duguey, in a trade for Sherwood Magee. In other words, the building up of the champions has involved an outlay of not more than $5,000 for players' releases.

Moran does not believe in deals for expensive stars, and as a result the Philadelphia club is a money-maker for the first time in a great many years.

GREAT TEAM OF "CAST OFFS"

Manager Lee Fohl Claims Strongest Collection of Discards Ever Put Together.

Lee Fohl of Cleveland says he has the greatest team of discards ever put together, not excepting the Boston Braves of 1914.

With a few exceptions every man on the Indian team has at one time or another worn the uniform of another major league team and been released for one reason or another, though it is hardly proper to call players like Speaker, Roth, Daly and Gaddis "discards."

PALMERO IS QUITE ACCURATE

Cuban Twirler Never Forgets What to Do With Ball When He Gets It—Remembering Whites.

Emilio Palmiero, the Cuban twirler of the Giants, whose splendid hurling against the Phillies in the first game of the recent series may win him a place on the regular pitching staff of the club, reminds one for all the world of George White in the field. He is accurate itself in handling the ball, and he never forgets what to do with the leather when he gets it. A hint to him must be perfectly placed to advance a runner.

The Seal That Speaks Hardest. The inspiration which uttered itself in Hamlet and Lear could stir things as good from day to day forever. Why, then, should I make account of Hamlet and Lear, as if we had not the seal from which they fell as syllables from the tongue?—Emerson.

BASEBALL STORIES

In "Jack" Smith the Cardinals have picked out a real ball player.

McGraw has three wicked right field batters in Doyle, Kauff and Robertson.

No ballplayer ever improved his daily average by batting around at night.

Oh, yes, the quick Witt of Connie Mack often helps him out in tight places.

George Stallings has no doubt that Elmer Knitzer will make good under Herzog.

Ball players who try to bait Hank O'Day these days are certain to get the hook.

An echo from the past. Marty O'Toole, of $22,500 fame, was sold to Omaha, Neb.

In one respect pennants and the Red Sox are alike. It takes an operation to cure them.

Inside baseball is a great thing providing the other fellows don't take the inside outside.

Dave Altizer is going back. Yes, running back and robbing speed boys on impossible plays.

Klepper, one-time Yankee pitcher, is one of the main props of the rehabilitated Cleveland club.

The baseball shark who picked the Giants to finish one-two neglected to specify in which season.

It appears that Tyrus Cobb has a brother who resembles him in some respects, but not as a baseball player.

If Pongo Cantillon wins five American association flags in a row maybe he will get credit for having a ball club.

We hate to think what would happen to National league batsmen if Alexander's "dead arm" ever came to life again.

Shorten, the Red Sox's new outfielder, has cut some nifty capers since opening day. He is especially long on hitting.

Miller Huggins, manager of the Cardinals, expects Lee Meadows to pitch more games than any other Card pitcher this year.

A leaky bucket, a punctured tire, and a pitcher without support are about the same in that they get about the same results.

Hugh Jennings still has faith in "Bill" James and believes the big pitcher will come through and prove a big help to the Tigers.

Wilbert Robinson hasn't played actively for more than a decade, but he's the greatest ground coverer in the National league—when he sits down.

Cleveland is baseball mad. The fans of that city are certainly entitled to do some celebrating, for they have waited long enough for the opportunity.

Connie Mack says that the Athletics did not get good weather on the training trip and that his young pitchers could not get the right kind of a start.

Hongkong. Hongkong is not a part of the mainland of China, but is an island off the coast. It contains about thirty square miles, and has a population of some 200,000. The place was called to Great Britain in 1841. It has one of the finest harbors in the world.

SAUGERTIES

Saugerties, May 31.—Memorial Day was appropriately observed in Saugerties. The weather conditions were favorable and the program arranged by J. R. Tappen Post, G. A. R., for the parade in the morning was a success. The Colonel's Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps, J. R. Tappen Post, G. A. R., on foot and in carriages, C. E. Hamlin Uniformed Rank, K. of P., St. Mary's Commandery, Knights of St. John, Esopus Tribe, Independent Order of Red Men, Washington Hook and Ladder Co., and the Boy Scouts with their drum corps marched to Mountain View Cemetery, where the exercises were held. In the afternoon, under the direction of the Women's Relief Corps, the following program was carried out at the Orpheum Theater:

Renwick Smedberg of New York city is a guest of his mother on Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Seamon of Brooklyn were the guests of his parents on Main street over Decoration Day.

W. Hoyt Overbagh of Main street has returned from New York city.

George Whittaker, with the Walkover Shoe Co. of New York city, has been the guest of his parents on the south side.

Mrs. Julia Searing is ill at her home on West Bridge street.

The funeral of the late Dennis P. Dunn, who died Sunday evening, at his home on Partition street, Saugerties, was held this morning, Wednesday, at St. Mary's Church, Saugerties. The members of Esopus Tribe, No. 482, Improved Order of Red Men, attended in a body. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The Saugerties and New York Steamboat Co. ran two boats to New York city on Tuesday night to accommodate the number of visitors who spent Memorial Day in Saugerties, one boat leaving at 6 o'clock and the other at 7 o'clock.

The Hennegan Baseball Club was defeated twice on Decoration Day by the DePeyster Baseball Club of Madalin. The score for the morning game was: DePeysters, 15; Hennegan, 7, played at Madalin. The afternoon game at Saugerties: DePeysters, 4; Hennegan, 3. There was a large attendance at both games.

United States Tires

Experience, the Teacher of Tire Lessons

The experience of your last week-end holiday trip has told you something about the tires you use—

—That they are, or they are not, the particular tires suited to your particular car.

Experience taught the United States Tire Company that all tires are not suited to all cars.

That is why the United States Tire Company makes five different tires—a tire to meet every need of price and use—the only complete line offered by any tire manufacturer.

One of the five is made for your car—will give you the lowest cost per mile.

KINGSTON DEFEATED FAST ALBANY TEAM

Won First Game of Doubleheader by Score of 2 to 0—Second Game Stopped by Rain—Plays Fast Teams Saturday and Sunday.

The fast Kingston baseball club won the first game of what was to be a doubleheader at McVey's field on Decoration Day afternoon when the fast Albany Southern Club went down to defeat by a score of 2 to 0. Kissam of Newburgh was on the mound for Kingston and Schirck of this city was on the receiving end. The entire game was replete with thrilling plays and as many as five double plays were pulled off. The second game also promised to be a thriller but only ran three innings with the score 0 and 0 when the heavy downpour of rain put a stop to the game. Williams and Craig were in the points for Kingston in the second game.

Kingston will have a busy week for Saturday afternoon they are slated to play the fast Fabricoid Club of Newburgh. This game will be staged on the Athletic field at 3 o'clock that afternoon.

Sunday afternoon at McVey's field on Delaware avenue the Kingstons will clash with the Garnets of Albany. The locals were recently stated to play the Albany team, but the game was called off on account of the illness of a resident near the baseball field. The game Sunday is called for 3 o'clock.

HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATS TROY

Yesterday afternoon the high school nine cleaned up the nicest victory of the season so far when they nosed out one more run than the upstate high school champions could make, and finished the game with five runs against Troy's four.

The two teams kept the same pace throughout nearly the whole game. When Troy, who was first up, scored a run, the local players lost no time in doing likewise.

As usual Wheeler, Johnson and Terwilliger did the heavy hitting, while Peyer, who has had no training on the diamond this year, more than filled in the vacancy caused by the absence of one of the players. Relyea continued to nail down everything that came toward first base and Johnson duplicated his performance on third. The battery seemed at times a little out of gear but from the beginning of the fifth on to the close of the game they did everything to redeem themselves and to retain their former glory.

Game by Innings.

The first inning saw the Trojans lead off with two runs, made by Landugan and Cropsey, but it also saw Johnson make a neat base hit that resulted in his being brought in by a home run hit of Terwilliger's which combined both good luck and good management for besides "T's." work with the big stick there was another important part that was played by the long grass over by the side fence.

The right fielder must surely have been a saint if he exercised control over his choice of words while vainly searching for that ball, which fate had made to slip through his hands. Relyea also hit for one base but went out at second.

In the second inning neither team scored a run, although little Mac donated a base on balls to the visitors' center fielder.

The first man up for Troy in the third, Marey, brought home a run, which Wheeler lost no time in duplicating. Johnson, after stealing his way around the bases, just missed making a run by about two feet.

In the fourth Mac handed a visitor by the name of Potter a base on balls and that gentleman being forced to second by another base on balls decided to complete the round so Troy got her fourth and last run.

Kingston failed to tie this run in her half of the inning, but made up for lost time later on.

The fifth and sixth were carried through by both sides in the one, two, three order, and Troy started to do the same with the seventh. However, Kingston happened to remember she needed a run about this time, so Joyce, being hit at bat, trotted down to first and at convenient intervals he trotted around the other three bases in like manner. This made the score four all.

The eighth saw Wheeler make a three-base hit and it also saw him wind his way across the plate again when Johnson planted a nice hit to left field.

Troy accomplished nothing in the ninth, and the game was over, with complete the inning. Troy was compelled to leave the field with the first defeat she has sustained in a long, long time.

The Summary.

The Troy nine stole six bases and made two sacrifice hits, but no two-base hits or three baggers. Their pitcher struck out four men, gave two a base on balls and hit one man. On the other hand the Kingston fellows stole nine bases, made no sacrifice hits or two base hits but did make a home run and a three-bagger. The local fellows also made two double plays. Their pitcher pitched the whole game, struck out six men, hit two men and gave three a base on balls.

Seventeen straight, though, is some showing for a team considered the "joke of the league."

But the defeat was sweetened by the fact that they took their revenge later and made Alexander the Great abdicate.

Al Demaree is sure some cartoonist. He drew rings around the Browns, Red Sox and Pirates were the only ones to come through with a clean slate on the holiday. The Red Sox defeated the league leaders in both games, the Browns trimmed the Indians the first game and battled to a tie in the second, while the only game between the Reds and the Pirates went to the plank walkers.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)
New York, May 31.—Bill McKeechie's career as a Giant third baseman reads like a tale from the pen of some fiction writer who specializes in making heroes out of seeming dubs.

Just before the bugle sent the National League clubs into action in April, Hans Lobert, slated to do the third sacking chores for the Giants, was wounded.

"It will be six weeks or two months before Lobert's leg mends sufficiently to enable him to get back into the game," announced the medical gents. Thereupon, John McGraw played Fred Brainerd at third, and Brainerd promptly messed things in a horrible way.

"Help! Help! Gimme a third baseman," shrieked John. "I can render you succor," said a voice. It was that of Harry Sinclair. "I offer you Bill McKeechie. He managed and played third base for my Newark Federal Club last year. Bill's a pretty good ball player. Want him? I've quit the baseballing business and I'll let you have Bill at a bargain price."

"You're on!" said John. And Bill became a Giant a day or two later. For nearly two weeks Bill McKeechie played regularly—and went hitless. Bill, it seemed, was a flivver—very much of a flivver. Oh, yes, Bill was fielding quite well—but the Giants needed a little macing help, too.

One day in Boston, Bill made his first hit as a Giant. The players became so jubilant over it that it annoyed his umpirical majesty, William Klem. So Bill chased a large flock of Giants to the clubhouse because they had fractured the afternoon quiet with their cheers.

McGraw became hopeful when McKeechie made that hit. He figured Bill probably had chased the jinx. But not yet. Bill continued to go up to the plate and do everything but hit safely. Finally, John benched Bill and played a youngster named Hunter on third. Hunter showed up well, and although he didn't do any tremendous batting he was clubbing far beyond Bill's average.

But Hunter lasted only a day or two. Then he was wounded and had to retire from the frolic.

"Ye Gods! Ye Gods!" exclaimed John McGraw at that moment. "What shall I do? Oh, what shall I do? Lobert and Hunter on the hospital list and McKeechie as good as a wooden Indian."

But there was only one thing for him to do—and he did it. He put Bill McKeechie, the flivver, back on third, while the fans groaned in despair.

Meanwhile John was trying in every way to land another third baseman. But he failed. And with Bill as the third sacker regular—Bill, who was hitting just slightly above .000 stretch as did Bill. He covered ground and killed off at least a score of seeming sure hits by dazzling stops and throws.

McKeechie's comeback was one of the big factors in winning those 13 straight for us," declared McGraw.

despised flivver, emerges as the real hero. Almost as soon as the Giants got onto foreign soil, Bill began to hit—and how he did! He hit 'em when once started. He became the demon slayer of the team. Time and again his timely bingles put the Giants into the fight or helped them to win games. Practically every time Bill was called upon to make a hit in a pinch, he delivered.

Bill clubbed the offerings of those western heavens for an average close to .400 in those 13 games—and he hasn't shut-out of the hitting habit yet. He has found his batting eyes—and he is belting almost everything that comes his way.

Not only did McKeechie hit with much vim and gusto, but his fielding was especially brilliant. No third sacker in the country pulled so many remarkable plays over a 13 game stretch as did Bill. He covered ground and killed off at least a score of seeming sure hits by dazzling stops and throws.

McKeechie's comeback was one of the big factors in winning those 13 straight for us," declared McGraw.

"When he began to hit—and to hit when his meant runs—it inspired the other boys. And they just put everything they had into every inning—and thirteen straight wins in the west was the result."

In conclusion, we wish to state that about the only way Hans Lobert can get back his old job is to throw Bill into the Hudson river some dark night. Meanwhile, the Gotham fans are debating as to whether they will present Bill with the Brooklyn bridge and the Metropolitan Museum, or give him $5,000,000 in cash and nominate him for the presidency.

You can't "spell-bind" many men into liking what they dislike—every man's taste is his own

IF A MANUFACTURER in his advertising tells you (truthfully, as he believes) that he has the "best tasting cigarette in the world" and you believe him, you probably try his cigarette. It may be a very good cigarette. But his over-enthusiasm has led you to expect something almost impossible. You light that cigarette and—

Well, there's a good chance that you're disappointed. It may not be the fault of the cigarette. The cigarette may be mighty good. But you've been led to expect too much. You've been "over-sold."

And besides, tastes differ—who can tell what cigarette will best please your taste before you try it?

That's why we leave the taste of Fatimas entirely up to you. We believe you will like them; but you may not.

To be sure, most men like the taste of Fatimas better than any other cigarette they ever smoked. Figures indicate that. More

Fatimas are sold than any other cigarette in the world costing over 5c.

But the taste isn't all.

If you do like Fatimas' taste as well as these thousands and thousands of other men do, you'll find a second reason for sticking to them for good. And that reason is that Fatimas will give you cigarette comfort at all times. This is why they have won the name of being as SENSIBLE a cigarette as a man can find anywhere.

They are comfortable to the throat and tongue. You'll never experience any "sandpaper tickle" or "hotness" in the cool-smoking Turkish blend of Fatimas.

And Fatimas can be smoked more freely than any other cigarette we know of without leaving any mean after-feeling, as some less skillfully blended cigarettes do.

If you have never smoked Fatimas—you should try them.
